Girl Scouts get extra land

A lease for 110 acres of additional land on Lake Wappapello was presented to the Cotton Boll Girl Scout Council Tuesday. Participating in the presentation at the council office, from left, were Paul R. Geer of Vicksburg, Miss., chairman of management and disposal branch, real estate division, U.S. Army Engineer Division, Lower Mississippi Valley; Tom Simpkins of Memphis, Tenn., chief of management and disposal branch, real estate division, Memphis District Corps of Engineers; Lucille T. Latta, attorney, of Vicksburg, Miss. Corps of Engineers real estate division; Ilena Aslin of Sikeston, executive director of Cotton Boll Area Girl Scout Council, Inc., and Doris Brown of Sikeston, Camp Latonka director.

Senate will not act on bills not debated

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Senate gave tentative approval to three bills Wednesday night before voting to take no further action on Senate bills not already debated this session.

A bill to allow public employes to bargain collectively was wirthdrawn by its sponsor, Sen. Donald Gralike, D-St. Louis, after encountering opposition during lengthy debate.

Gralike placed the bill on the informal calendar where he said it could die "its natural death."

In his closing speech on the bill, Gralike said the legislature obviously was not ready to grant public employes, some of whom are on welfare, a forum to present their needs.

Gralike said a roll call vote on an amendment which he said gutted the bill identified the opposition to the proposal.

A bill to allow local governments to run the state's motor vehicle license fee offices saw brief light when it was given a chance for debate.

But Sen. Richard M. Webster, R-Carthage, one of the bill's sponsors, allowed the bill to die on the informal calendar when he yielded to another senator's bill.

The Senate gave tentative approval to a bill that would require regulation of private security agencies by the superintendent of the state highway patrol.

Also given tentative approval was a bill to allow women to take legal action within two years, instead of the present six months, for employment discrimination.

A bill to place all employers under workmen's compensation laws was also given tentative approval.

Sen. Albert M. Spradling, D-Cape Girardeau, sponsor, said the bill brings state workmen's compensation laws into compliance with federal regulations.

He said the bill also increases death and disability payments to all employes.

On a motion by Sen. Lawrence J. Lee, D-St. Louis, majority floor leader, the Senate voted to cease action on any additional Senate bills not already given tentative approval in order to begin business on bills passed by the House and awaiting Senate action.

The action means about 57 Senate bills which were not acted on are dead for this session.

Technically, the bills could be taken up for action by a special vote. However, under usual procedure there will be no action on the bills before the deadline for floor action June 15.

Earlier, the Senate passed and sent to the House 26 other bills, including one to establish a Division of Juvenile Delinquency and Youth Services.

The bill, sponsored by Sen. John Schneider, D-Florissant, would replace the State Board of Training School and oversee juvenile treatment programs.

The measure drew criticism from rural senators because of a minimum standards provision they said might increase the cost of hiring juvenile officers.

The House Appropriations Committee approved an $87.1 million capital improvements bill, after amending it to include a new $6.4 million veterinary school building at the University of Missouri.

Gov. Christopher S. Bond had requested capital improvements totaling only $45.8 million, but the committee made major increases in spending for state hospitals, colleges and mental institutions.

Only $6.2 million of the bill comes from state general revenue funds.

The bulk of the money comes from $71.8 million in federal revenue sharing funds. Another $4.6 million

Argument halts court

A dispute over courtroom procedure between City Court Judge Jim Sickal and City Attorney Kenneth Dement brought Wednesday's City Court proceedings to an abrupt halt, with the dismissal of several cases following an exchange of words between Dement and Sickal.

One police officer said that in his 12 years of attending court, he had "never seen anything like it." Another officer termed it "a circus."

The trouble began, according to Dement, when Sickal objected to a question Dement asked a witness in a trial of a case involving Denver Graham, 215 N. Frisco. Graham was charged with interferring with a police officer.

Graham's a night watchman at the Shoe Factory. According to police, an officer who had been sent to back up another policeman parked his squad car in the Malone Ave. entrance to the Shoe factory parking lot.

Graham allegedly went up to the police officer and told him it was against company regulations for anyone to park there. The officer told him he was just covering for another policeman and would leave as soon as he was no longer needed. The officer said Graham kept on arguing and distracted him from covering the first policeman.

During the questioning of one of the witnesses, Dement said Sickal objected to a question he asked. Dement said he believed the objection out of order. He said judges rule on objections, but do not make objections.

After several minutes of verbal fireworks, Sickal ruled that Graham was innocent.

Dement said he asked that Sickal step down from the bench and not hear the case, because he was prejudiced. When Sickal refused to disqualify himself, Dement dismissed the remaining cases on the docket. The cases may be refiled at a later date.

Sickal said today he did not object to the question, he merely told the witness the question was irrelevant to the case and need not be answered. Sickal said it was at this point that Dement asked him to disqualify himself. Sickal said he would not disqualify himself because he was only ruling on what was relevant to the case.

He said he told Dement that if the city was unhappy with the ruling, it could appeal the decision. Sickal said he was just defending the rights of the defendant.

He said it was at this point that he told Graham that the city failed to prove that he had interfered with the police officer. Sickal said finding Graham innocent was

110 acres added to Latonka

Officials of the Army Corps of Engineers Tuesday granted Cotton Boll Area Girl Scout Council, Inc., 110 acres of additional land on Lake Wappapello. The additional leased property makes a total of 368.5 acres of property where the council's Camp Latonka is owned and operated.

Tom W. Simpkins, chief management and disposal branch, real estate division, Department of the Army, Memphis District, Corps of Engineers; Paul R. Geer, chairman of management and disposal branch, real estate division, U.S. Army Engineer Division, Lower Mississippi Valley, Vicksburg, Miss.; and Miss Lucille T. Latta, attorney acquisition branch, real estate division, Vicksburg, Miss.; personally delivered the lease Tuesday to the Cotton Boll Council office headquarters in Sikeston. The lease was signed and formally presented to Miss Ilena Aslin, executive director, and Miss Doris Brown, field advisor and camp director.

Today a copy of the lease was personally delivered by Geer, Simpkins and Miss Latta to Taylor Miles of Kennett who played a major role in obtaining the additional property.

The council plans to reserve the property as a wilderness camping area. It will be used for backpacking, nature hikes, exploration trips and wildlife refuge.

In recognition of their longtime interest in the work of Camp Latonka, Cotton Boll Area Girl Scout Council Tuesday presented Girl Scout recognition plaques to Simpkins and Geer.

Local station burglarized

Riley's Sunoco Service Station on East Malone Avenue was broken into sometime between midnight Wednesday and 6:40 a.m. today, according to police.

The burglars took a tune-up machine valued at $700, two cases of motor oil valued at $20, two batteries valued at $24 each, $64 worth of sparkplugs and $60 to $70 from the cash register. The thieves also took a number of tires. The exact number and value were undetermined, police said.

The thieves entered the station by breaking out a window in a garage door.

The men are working on the $545,000 elementary school being built for the R-5 district next to Scott County Central High School. Work is about 60 per cent completed with students expected to move into the school in mid-September. The building will house 325 to 350 students from the Morley and Vanduser schools, which may have to remain open a short time this fall until the new building is ready for occupancy.

Siren to be tested Friday

The new tornado warning siren installed atop a Scott County Milling Co. grain bin last week will be tested at noon Friday, Gerald Howard, city civil defense director, announced today.

Anyone who hears the siren from any distance is asked to call the fire department so it can be determined how far the siren carries, Howard said.

Both the warning signal of a one- to- three minute blast and the all- clear signal of three short blasts will be tested.

Thatcher Scism

Scism Rotary governor

LAUSANNE, Switzerland— G. Thatcher Scism, former president of the Sikeston, Mo. Production Credit Association, today was elected top Rotary official for his home area by delegates to the Rotary International convention meeting in Lausanne.

Scism is one of 345 men from 149 countries of the Rotary world elected as a district governor for the 1973- 74 year. As governor of District 609, he will coordinate 39 clubs in his district.

A Rotarian since 1962, he is a member and past president of the Rotary Club of Sikeston, one of more than 15,000 clubs around the world.

Rotary International is the association of all the clubs and is administered by a 14- man board of directors, six of whom were elected to two- year terms (1973- 75 today. Six other directors have one more year to serve, and the other 1973- 74 board members are the president (William C. Carter of London, Battersea, England) and president- elect (William R. Robbins of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., U.S.A.) The other international officers of the organization are the district governors. Rotary was only seven years old in 1912 when the forerunner of the current district system was set up. At that time there were eight districts and 50 Rotary clubs, compared to 345 districts and over 15,000 Rotary clubs today. There were about 5,000 Rotarians then, and now there are three quarters of a million.

The Rotary clubs which district governors administer are made up of business and professional men, each representing a different occupation. Their common bond is service--- within the club, on the community level and on the international level.

The district governor visits every club in his district at least once during his year and visits with club officers, offering suggestions to the club for bettering itself.

Watergate hearings open

WASHINGTON (AP) — A tribunal of seven senators opened today historic hearings into the Watergate scandals, and an aide in President Nixon's reelection campaign testified there was no doubt that final political authority rested with the White House.

The leadoff witness, Robert C. Odle Jr., who served as director of administration at the Committee for the Re-Election of the President, said he did not known of political sabotage or surveillance by that organization.

"Only what I've read in the newspapers," Odle, 28, testified before a crowded, nationally televised Senate hearing.

Much of Odle's testimony dealt with the administrative setup at the Nixon campaign committee.

Odle specifically denied that he destroyed any documents involving the Watergate affair— although he said the committee had shredding machines at "convenient points" in its offices.

He also denied receiving transcripts of wiretaps.

Odle said he was "absolutely not" involved in bugging activities.

He said he hired James W. McCord as a security man for the re-election committee. He also said he fired McCord, later convicted as a Watergate conspirator.

Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., asked whether the Committee for the Re-election of the President was solely under control of the President and his top aides.

Odle described the relationship as one of cooperation, not technical or legal control.

"Is it fair to say that the committee was set up, organized and directed from the White House?" Talmadge asked.

"Those people who were at the White House had influence over the committee, they gave it direction," Odle testified. "But the campaign director, of course, was not at the White House. He came from the Justice Department."

That drew laughter from the standing-room audience. The man at the Justice Department was former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, now under indictment in connection with a secret campaign contribution.

"There was no doubt as to where the ultimate authority lay, was there?" Talmadge asked.

"No, sir," said Odle.

Odle said he heard of the Watergate burglary on Saturday afternoon, June 17, 1972. It had happened early that morning.

He said he was told of a burglary at Democratic headquarters.

"And I said to some people who were in that meeting ... I said that could never happen here because I've got a guy working for me named Jim McCord," Odle said.

McCord was security man for the Nixon committee—and one of the Watergate burglars.

Following an opening statement defending Nixon and the majority of his campaign workers, Odle was questioned in detail about the setup of the Committee for the Re-election of the President, and its lines of authority.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., opened the hearings, and said his panel "must probe into assertions that the very system itself has been subverted and its foundations shaken."

Ervin said Watergate disclosures have "cast a black cloud of distrust over our entire society. Our citizens do not know whom to believe ..."

To dispel that, he said, the Senate committee must find the truth.

"The nation and history itself are watching us," he said. "We cannot fail our mission."

Odle testified that former presidential staff chief H. R. Haldeman played a key role, along with former Atty. Gen. Mitchell, in selecting staff members for the Nixon campaign committees.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

You get a higher score when you count your blessings rather than when you add up your troubles.

* * *

Congress Jerry Litton (Dem.-Mo.) who represents our neighbors in Northwest Missouri has come up with a new idea dealing with those who evaded military service in the Vietnam war.

We quote:

"Since we agreed in Article 21 of the cease-fire agreement to help rebuild North Vietnam and since many feel that amnesty should be given those who refused to serve provided they give some type of service to mankind in return, then we can accomplish both of these objectives by sending those people who seek amnesty to North Vietnam (instead of money) to help rebuild their country.

"If those in America who evaded military service loved the North Vietnamese too much to fight them, perhaps they still love them enought to help them in their reconstruction program. The sickening stories of torture related back to the American people by our returning POWs should not indicate that the North Vietnamese have any love for Americans.

"I personally do not favor aid to North Vietnam or unconditional amnesty, but if we are to aid North Vietnam and if we are going to permit those who refused to serve when called to work for mankind in return for amnesty, then I see no reason why we can't accomplish both of these objectives by sending those who seek amnesty to North Vietnam to serve a given number of years in helping rebuild that country in lieu of money which is so badly needed not only for domestic programs here in America, but also to bolster the value of the sagging U. S. dollar."

Not a bad idea, Jerry -- and how about throwing Jane Fonda and a few others into the deal, too?

THE CURELEST MONTH

As far as 1973 has been concerned, T. S. Eliot could not have been more right; April has been a cruel, cruel month. The rivers have flooded and then flooded some more. With a few exceptions, the weather has been miserable; gray and wet. Food is too expensive to eat. The Blues have failed again in the Stanley Cup playoffs. And as for baseball, everybody, including the Cardinals, must already be wishing the season were over. At the risk of being called a nattering nabob of negativism by a Washington official whose name we have been allowed to forget, it has been a rotten month. Were we not by nature progressive and optimistic, we would call for the impeachment of April and a restoration of January, which held no promises and stuck clearly and comfortably to form: We would tell the hounds of spring to run like hell on winter's traces.

NATIONAL PERSPECTIVE

The Report of America's Sound Transportation Review Organization is entitled "The American Railroad Industry." However, it does much more than set forth immediate and long-range programs to restore the rails to a position of strength in the transportation system. It brings into perspective the haphazard and costly public policies that are bringing chaos to the entire transportation industry. It deals with a great many specific situations where corrective action is needed.

For example, it has long been known that one of the gravest rail problems has resulted from pouring unlimited billions of tax dollars into other forms of transport without regard to the competitive impact on the rails. One rail spokesman notes that the federal government has spent $229 billion in the past 15 years alone for modes of transportation competing with railroads. On this problem, the ASTRO Report observes, "The problems of national interest in surface transportation can be addressed most directly and effectively by the creation of a federal transportation fund. The resources fed into the fund should be distributed ... to further a balance transportation system as the needs of each mode are indicated in the public interest. The general public benefits to be realized should include consideration of issues closely related to transportation system as the needs of each mode are indicated in the public interest. The general public benefits to be realized should include consideration of issues closely related to transportation, such as reduction of pollution and urban congestion, and better land use ... As a first step, the present highway trust fund must become part of a new general transportation fund which would encompaas railroad assistance."

Of all the studies and reports that have been made, over the years, relative to transportation and the railroads, none can surpass the ASTRO Report from the standpoint of thoroughness and logic. Its recommendations are the culmination of the efforts of the nation's leading transportation experts. They offer a way to restore long- term stability to the transportation industry within the taxpaying, private enterprise system.

THE END IS TOTAL FORCE

Advocates of the planned economy, especially all-out wage and price controls as a means of combating inflationary pressures, can see the ultimate consequences of this form of repression in the riots and strikes that overtook Poland a short while ago. According to The National Observer, the revolt started off peacefully with workers marching in protest agains stiff government decreed price increases for food, fuel and clothing. Before long the protest spread throughout the communist - governed nation "... in the worst spasm of rioting in 14 years." The rebellion was put down by force -- communist style.

No one can conceive protests over government controls reaching the point in the United States that they apparently have in communist countries like Poland. But the principle is the same, whenever the free market is displaced by a system of controls, force of one kind or another must be exerted in the place of the natural law of supply and demand. The greater the dislocations of a government-planned, regulated economy become, the greater the force that must be applied to make the system work. The end of the road is either abandon of controls and return to the free market or the imposition of a police state, under which consumer "options" are removed by troops and tanks.

OPERATION RESPECT

Neither government action nor the exhortation of a President of the United States can instill character and a sense of morality and purpose in the people. These virtues must come from the "grassroots". They stem from individual action and from the voluntary inspired efforts of character - building groups and organizations of all kinds. Above all, they cannot be bought with government handouts.

An example of the kind of character building that makes a nation strong can be seen in the Boys' Clubs of America. This organization is conducting a program known as "Operation Respect," designed to increase respect for the law, the rights of others, for private property and the American form of government. The program has been made possible through a $10,000 grant from the J. Edgar Hoover Foundation. Its specific objectives are to create positive attitudes toward law enforcement personnel and other responsibile community officials; to teach respect for property and the rights of others; to promote the understanding of laws and government; and to develop an appreciation of Constitutional rights and the nation's heritage. There are some 850,000 members of the Boys' Clubs of America. They participate in the activities of 870 local clubs in 600 cities throughout the country.

Speaking to the Board of Directors of the Boys' Clubs of America, Vice President Agnew observed: "I can't commend too highly the work that has been done by your national organization since 1906 ... America urgently needs more of this kind of interest in our young people from the private sector- - intimate, personal leadership that inspires them to achieve and excell ... " Organizations like Boys' Clubs are wellsprings of character from which flow the strength and vitality of our country.

FM IS GROWING UP

"FM radio is making fast progress in programming, set penetration, and big advertiser acceptance. But it still is a long way from a major breakthrough as a big- time national advertising vehicle," says Media Decisions Magazine.

To prove their contention, they quote these figures: In 1960, total FM sets in the U.S. numbered 1,048,000. At the end of 1969, there were 22,581,498, and this figure does not include the FM sets that are a part of a TV-phonograph combination. The total estimate is around 25 million.

One of the major hurdles for FM is auto set penetration. The ratio of FM to AM in autos is well under one in ten. Most of the FM sets in the U.S. were made overseas and the cost is in reach of low incomes. Because of that and the fact that it is basically a music medium, FM is developing rapidly among the young.

In some metropolitan areas, FM ratings are quite spectacular. But still hampered by meagre promotion and its old image of "too specialized", FM has yet to experience parity with AM in acceptance by national buyers of radio.

SECOND THOUGHTS BY WALTER LIPPMANN

For many years columnist Walter Lippmann was the "darling" of the American left, the statists and the "elite" in our country. They hailed his criticisms of anti- communist foreign policy and endorsed his promotion of collectivism as the reigning philosophy.

But now, at age 83, Walter Lippmann may be joining the ranks of disillusioned "liberals" who have come to realize that the ideas they preached so dilligently have seriously undermined and severely weakened the very foundations of our nation.

In an interview with a Washington Post reporter, Lippmann condemend the view that "man is essentially good and can be made perfect by making the environment perfect, and the environment can be made perfect by taxing the mass of people to spend money for improving it."

On the contrary, Lippmann noted, "Man is not naturally good, nor is his nature perfectible by economic means."

When it was suggested that government should deal with the causes of poverty, Lippmann responded: "Can anybody know what the causes are? There are many causes: laziness, wastefulness. Those are traits inherent in human beings. Some make for poverty and some make for wealth."

Lippmann also expressed concern about the deterioration of family life in the U.S., denying that it was a result of the Vietnam war. He said it was the effect of an undermining process that had been going on for many years, called it "dangerous," and said the destruction of the family "threatens to produce the chaos of modern times." It is unlikely that many of those who admired Mr. Lippmann so much in earlier days will heed his second thoughts. HLH

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Be glad you don't grow at the rate an opossum does. As an adult it reaches 28,000 times its birth weight. If this were true of you and you had been an eight-pound baby, you would now weigh 112 tons, too much for even a mother to love.

The health care you can get readily depends to a great extent on where you live in America. For example, there are 133 counties which have no resident physician. However, only 0.2 per cent of the U.S. population lives in these counties.

The beard of a man who lets it grow numbers about 13,000 whiskers. They grow at a density of about 390 per square inch on his cheeks, 580 per square inch on his chin.

Know your calendar: In the ancient Roman calendar, ascribed to Romulus, the year had only 10 months. The last was called December because it came from a word meaning 10. But when two more months were added, it was still placed last despite the fact its name was no longer appropriate in that position. The Saxons called the last month "winter-monath" or "heligh-monath," because it contained Christmas.

It isn't disease alone that keeps us from becoming centenarians. One of the quickest ways to extend the average life of the American male would be to eliminate the lethal toll of accidents, homicides, and suicides.

Quotable notables: "There are plenty of new sights under the sun for those who have eyes to see. Nothing is done finally and right. Nothing is done positively and completely. In science, probably 99 per cent of the knowable has yet to be discovered." — Lincoln Steffens.

A sick society: The world may not be crazy but it drives many people mad. One out of 10 Americans suffers from some form of mental illness, mild or severe. Mental disease has become a problem affecting 21 million U.S. families — one out of four.

A rut: The nation's leading chain cave operator, Lester B. Dill, operator of Meramec Caverns on Highway 66 in Missouri, claims he has been in more than 15,000 caves throughout the world — more than anyone else in history. What's your claim to fame?

Productive: Why is agriculture so important? Because if he lived only on wild plants and wild game, each human being would need eight square miles in which to forage. But thanks to proper soil cultivation, that same amount of acreage can now support on the average more than 5,000 people.

Worth remembering: "One of the reasons so many politicians are keeping their mouths shut today is that they are afraid if they open them a foot will fall out."

Folklore: Hairs from a black cat have curative powers. Cats born in the month of May make poor mousers. If a cat sits with its back to the fire, expect a storm soon. Put butter on a cat's paws to keep it from straying from a new house you move into.

It was Austin O'Malley who observed, "God shows His contempt for wealth by the kind of person He selects to receive it."

White House Junta Tried To Quarantine President Nixon--- Completely

WASHINGTON— It has not been reported--- but so desperately did the Haldeman-Ehrlichman junta attempt to isolate the President so they actually could run this nation from a single White House phone, that they maneuvered to remove Mr. Nixon's personal secretary, Rose Mary Woods, and replace her with a mannequin of their own.

This would have slashed one of the few non- junta conduits to the President. This would have taken from him one of the few "ship crews" he could trust. Rose Mary has been with Dick Nixon for some 25 years. She's virtually part of the family.

This report comes from an absolutely impeccably objective source. Rose Mary was the one person Haldeman sometimes had to stumble over to get to the President.

But Rose Mary Woods is a pro. Her brother Joe Woods is an ex- FBI agent. It can be reported that when she heard the junta wanted to shift her to some "vital" library- type research work, her words to them, it's reported, were "drop dead."

This is not a Watergate story. This is bigger than it and them and all of us. This is part of the strange Orwellian, often Kafkaesque effort of three, perhaps four, men to run the government in Big Brother's fashion. I mean just that. This junta went in for far more wiretapping and espionage than is believed. Men who have watched this operation inside the White House but from just outside the pale so believe. They ask, is it illogical to believe that other forces besides the Democratic National Committee were bugged, wiretapped and spied on? There were more powerful opponents than the weak, bankrupt, divisive, amateurishly directed Democratic Committee. The junta knew as much about those other anti- Nixon forces as they did about the Larry O'Brien operation until mid-June.

Why is it difficult to believe the junta did not bug or tap so-called "neutral" organizations soon to become politically active?

The junta was in the business of delivering whole departments to the right callers. It worried only about the FBI under the late J. Edgar Hoover. So it began dealing with some of his aides.

Files were called for and leaked. Stories were spread that in his last few years "the old man" was senile, that he was not interested in organized crime (though for the first time the Bureau's special agents began infiltrating the Mafia itself), that he was not even concerned with domestic coverage of foreign intelligence.

The junta wanted him out so they could get at the impenetrable files with impunity. This happened under Pat Grey's adminsitration. And it was known all over the White House that Gray would last only six or eight months.

So feared was the junta by FBI men who have served most of their adult lives, but not enough yet to qualify for a pension, that they even didn't dare mark the old director's death last May 2.

Instead there was an "in-house" moment of silence in FBI offices across the nation on the first anniversary of Mr. Hoover's death. But not in public. Not even in the national headquarters here.

Until it was ceremoniously dumped, the junta simply ran the government with "this is the White House calling. The old man (Nixon) would like..." or "wants."

This operation reached into the national security circles. That's why Dr. Kissinger lunched with the international operative, William Leonard Taub, a Jimmy Hoffa agent who actually used his contact to meet Le Duc Tho.

Especially vulnerable were sections of the Labor Department. There I know of only one high official who stood up and told the junta to go to hell. And in soap opera language, the only words fitting, he paid a dear, dear price for his guts.

When Pete Brennan was named Secretary of Labor, the junta believed him a patsy. They sent the weirdest men along. Brennan rejected their offerings for high office in this all- powerful (second only to Justice) department--- including one candidate with underworld connections, to put it charitably.

Pete took seriously the President's directive that most departments would have "new majority" officials--- ethnic, racial, blue- collar and non-university representation. And Brennan, with the aid of the fatigueless Treasury Secretary George Shultz (whom the junta tried to get several times), won.

The junta did better in other departments until the whistle was blown. Its strategy was to place men in second and third echelons where the government really is run--- and with men who would report to the Haldeman- Ehrlichman elite corps. And during a lame duck administration at that, when the President, always a foreign service buff, was looking abroad.

This Orwellian 1984- darkness- at- noon junta is the story. The Watergate cover- up makes extraordinary copy. But what President didn't cover up? For example, did not Johnson dispatch two of Washington's most prestigious lawyers to make the rounds of newspapers to kill the story of a homosexual White House aide?

The junta's effort to isolate the President, fascistize the nation and run it, is quite a story in its own right.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:

Pulling the Strings: Haldeman

WASHINGTON— At the center of the Watergate web, investigators now believe, is the deposed White House major domo H. R. Haldeman. Most of the strings in the Watergate tangle seem to lead back to him.

String No. 1-- Most of the men implicated in the scandal belonged to his tight little circle. Such key Watergate figures as John Dean, Jeb Magruder, Dwight Chapin and Gordon Strachan reported directly to him.

String No. 2-- Haldeman was such a meticulous manager, investigators have concluded, that the Watergate operation couldn't have occurred without his knowledge. He stayed behind the scenes, using loyal aides to do the dirty work. He kept them on such a tight leash, as one insider put it, that "they couldn't sneeze without his permission." During a presidential appearance that Chapin scheduled, for instance, another aide asked Chapin to arrange for President Nixon to walk five feet out of his way to greet an important labor leader. Chapin said he couldn't do it without Haldeman's approval.

String No. 3-- Jeb Magruder has told prosecutors that ex-Attorney General John Mitchell opposed the Waterbugging, although he went along reluctantly in the end. It was Dean, according to Magruder, who kept insisting on going ahead with the scheme. Dean, in turn, has said he took his directions from Haldeman.

String No. 4-- Haldeman controlled a $350,000 cash fund that apparently was used to bribe the Watergate defendants to keep their mouths shut. The money was delivered by Haldeman's assistant, Gordon Strachan, to the apartment of campaign aide Fred LaRue. Like the others, LaRue was also a Haldeman loyalist.

Investigating Haldeman

Not long after the Waterbuggers were arrested, our White House sources tipped us off that the plot had Haldeman's imprint all over it. Although these sources had demonstrated their reliability in the past, we knew they disliked Haldeman intensely. We therefore investigated cautiously and could find no direct Haldeman involvement.

But we were able to report on August 22, 1972, that Haldeman was calling the political shots for President Nixon. "Operating out of the White House on government salary," we wrote, "Haldeman has tried to remain the invisible man of the campaign.

"But we have established that most of the important campaign decisions have come through him... Haldeman issues political directives, approved campaign contracts, receives political reports and coordinates campaign activities... Those on the inside say he is the most powerful man in the 1972 campaign, second only to the President himself."

It took us until February 25, 1973, before we could link Haldeman's name for the first time to Watergate. Still, we could only report that "the Watergate tracks (lead) right up to Haldeman's door." We noted that FBI agents had been forbidden from questioning him. "Yet," we wrote, "they were able to trace Watergate clues to Haldeman aides, who never make a move without asking Haldeman."

Then we described how he operated. "Haldeman exercises his power," we reported, "from behind the scenes, carefully staying in the darkest part of the President's shadow. He has surrounded himself with bright, disciplined, younger men who don't question his instructions.

"He deliberately brought them to the White House from comparative obscurity, with few political ties, and, therefore, less risk of divided loyalties. Their loyalty to Haldeman, say our sources, exceeds even their allegiance to the President."

Diagnosis of Haldeman

Haldeman has been described in news accounts as a pragmatist, a managerial type, who was more interested in efficiency that ideology. This is not the impression we get. On the contrary, he has strong convictions, which he sought to impose upon the country.

Like the President, Haldeman grew up in California when it was still the golden state, with orange groves, clean air and a feeling it was indeed the land of promise. His grandfather migrated to California early in the century, made a small fortune as a building supply dealer and started the Better America Foundation in 1922. Haldeman's father, echoing the religious fundamentalism of Nixon's Quaker mother, devoted considerable energy to the Salvation Army.

There has been no hint that Haldeman pocketed any of the campaign cash that passed through his hands. He used it strictly to gain political power and achieve political goals.

Those who know Haldeman describe him as the sort of ideologue who would violate the law to achieve law and order. He believes fiercely in the rightness of the Nixon cause. To this end, Haldeman sought to bolster the power of the White House.

He spoke privately of "one-man rule," of President Nixon's "right" to run the country. As Haldeman saw it, the President was the only official elected by all the people. Haldeman felt this gave Richard Nixon a mandate, particularly after the 1972 landslide, to set the nation's policies and, if necessary, to ride roughshod over Congress, whose members individually represented limited constituencies.

The President, in turn, delegated much of his power to Haldeman. Explained a White House source: "The President had a dread that the demands of office would leave him no time to think. Bob Haldeman freed the President from the details that otherwise would drain his time."

River plays havoc with construction

CARUTHERSVILLE— The rampaging waters of the Mississippi River have washed away about one- third of the material on the 1.2- mile approach fill on the Missouri side of the Interstate 155 bridge being built south of Caruthersville, according to District 10 highway department officials.

"The water is still up and we haven't been able to tell where the sand used on the approach fill has gone," construction engineer Gary Chullino said of the I- 155 bridge project.

"If it all washed downstream, it means the contractor will likely have to get another dredge in and replace it," he added.

The contractor, R.B. Potashnick of Cape Girardeau, was caught with only the sand of the approach in place when the high water began. Had the project advanced further, there would have been an 18- inch dirt capping and erosions control sod mulch placed on the approach, Chullino said.

He explained the approach fill is on an average about 20 feet high. It is being constructed for two 24- foot wide concrete pavements.

Chullino said about 1,200 feet of the approach fill from where the bridge approach span is to be toward the Missouri side of the river was damaged. It is estimated approximately 300,000 cubic yards of sand washed away. The entire 1.2- mile approach fill consists of about one million cubic yards of sand.

Potashnick had begun some of the capping in January and during breaks in the flood, but little could be accomplished because of high water, Chullino observed.

Spur dikes had been constructed, but were not finished. Had the contractor been able to also get the dikes capped, the water probably would have been deflected somewhat and not washed away as much fill, Chullino noted. As it was, portions of the dikes also were washed out, he added.

"Without the rock and capping material (on the spur dikes) they were not sound. Soon the dikes were lost, which left the approach fill entirely exposed to currents," he said.

The duration of the flood also has caused hardships, he said. "The sand is continuously sliding off and falling into the water.

"We don't even know where the sand is," he declared. "About all Potashnick can do is bring a dredge back in and start repumping sand for the refill."

Potashnick's contract for constructing the approach fill is for $1,577,000, he said. The contract stipulates the contractor is responsible for actions of the elements.

"We're not sure yet how we'll go on this thing," Chullino stated. "The department may take the flood into consideration."

Chullino said it probably would be at least three more weeks before the river is down enough to inspect the amount of damage to the approach fill.

The flood is sure to cause a delay in completion of the bridge project, which was scheduled for 1976, he said. Bethlehem Steel Co., which has the contract for construction of the superstructural steel, has moved equipment to the site, but high water has prevented setting it up.

Piers for the main river span have been installed by Massman and Johnson Construction Companies, he said, but a contract has not been let for installation of 16 piers for the 1,000 foot approach span that will be in the gap between the main river span and the approach fill that was washed out.

Chullino said there was no damage to Tennessee's east side, because it did not get the velocity of currents that were experienced on the west side.

When completed, the overall, 7,098- foot structure will link Hayti with Dyersburg, Tenn. Contracts have not been let for construction of I- 155 in Missouri or Tennessee Chullino said if money is available they probably would be let this fall or early next year to allow two "working seasons" so that the highways would be finished when the bridge is ready for opening.

Mingo chances appear poor

PUXICO, Mo.— Chances of an 8,000- acre wilderness are in the last of the swamps that once covered Southeast Missouri appear all but gone unless conservationists can make their point before Congress.

The Department of the Interior, which proposes only 1,700 acres for wilderness protection in the old Mingo Swamp near here, sent its own plan to the White House which, a department spokesman said, probably will sent it to Congress as part of an overall wilderness package.

Conservation groups, including the Sierra Club and the Wilderness Society, urged at a hearing almost a year ago that the full 8,000 acres be considered. The Interior Department had called the hearing to consider only the 1,700 acres it proposed.

They said Monopoly Lake, the heart of the Mingo eco- system, is not included in the department's plan. The department, however, contends that the additional land proposed by conservationists does not meet wilderness specifications set by law.

Former POW honored at family reunion

TULSA, Okla. — For seven and a half years, Col. James Robinson Risner was a Vietnam prisoner of war after being shot down Sept. 16, 1965. The weekend of May 5 Col. Risner was guest of honor at a family reunion attended by 135 relatives, some from as far away as California, but most were from Missouri not too far from where he was born in Mammoth Spring, Ark.

On May 5, a dinner was hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Warren Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Harry Warren Jr. and Mrs. Boyd Duff, all of Charleston, at Ramada Inn. Mrs. Warren Sr. is Risner's aunt and Harry Warren Jr. and Mrs. Duff are his cousins. This was the first family reunion in 12 years.

In his opening speech, Risner praised his wife Kathy, saying she and the wives who stayed home in doubt and with problems to solve are the ones due tribute.

"The men in the Hanoi Hilton and other prisons were typical Americans. They did no more than a cross section of men taken off the streets here," Col Risner said. "I don't feel that I am a celebrity. I was selected by a wheel of fortune to spend a few years in a communist prison. I don't think I did any more than any other military man," he said.

He told of the torture inflicted on the American prisoners, saying we were like animals and called criminals. "I never gave up. I never thought I would not get back," he said.

Risner gave credit to God and the Christian faith, saying, "I lived alone for about four years, separated from the others. I knew I had to pray to survive and for months I lived only one minute at a time.

"I thought God would let me be tortured to death before I talked, but he didn't. Tortured, I screamed all night. I wanted to talk, but they didn't want me to then," he said, indicating it was more demeaning to drag the torture out.

The Americans struggled with genius and energy to defeat the Vietnamese effort to keep POWs from communicating with each other, Risner said. Although anyone caught communicating with other prisoners was punished, he said they worked out codes that were transmitted by hand signals, eye and ear movement, foot patting, rhythm of bamboo brooms, the sound of shovels or water while washing clothes.

"God Bless You" was the most frequently passed message, he said.

"We (POWs) believed in God, our country and our flag. We believed in the right to dissent. I did not like it when the dissenters prolonged the war by giving heart to the enemy, but I believe in the right to dissent. I fought for that right and I'd do it again," Risner said.

Risner, his wife and their five sons live in Oklahoma City.

Taking a brisk walk in the morning is something we'll never be accused of stealing.

Ann Landers

Hospitalized people should leave 'junk' pills at home

Dear Ann Landers: I am 15 years old (a girl) and a steady reader of your column. My 17-year- old brother bugs me about it. He says something is wrong with a person who is interested in reading about other people's problems. When I told him I learned a lot from it he said, "That's not why you read it. The real reason is because you are a sadist."

He pointed out that in the last few weeks you have printed letters from a woman who asks if God is a Mormon and a Republican, three kids who are fighting about their father's money and he isn't even dead yet and a nut who says she can't get a job because the only people being hired today are blacks, Indians and homosexuals.

Please give me a good answer for my creepy brother.--- Your Fan

Dear Fan; Next time your brother needles you about reading my column, ask him how come he knows everything that's in it?

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a registered nurse working in a large metropolitan hospital. I have noticed a serious problem in the realm of hospital care and decided to write to you in the hope that you would issue a warning.

The problem concerns the use of drugs by patients without the knowledge of the medical or nursing personnel.

Twice last week patients scheduled for surgery took "downers" on their own to calm themselves. Without realizing it, they set themselves up for an overdose, since most pre- operative medication includes a "downer" in injectable form. When that patient is wheeled into surgery he has a potentially lethal level of barbiturates in his blood stream.

I couldn't care less what these people do outside the hospital, but I implore all hospital- bound drug users to leave their junk at home. If a person who is dependent on drugs should find himself in the hospital for an emergency, he should confide the fact to a health professional and chances are good that the problem will be dealth with discreetly. The lives they save might be their own.--- Concerned R.N.

Dear R.N.: Thanks for an important letter. I'd like to add a word. The same goes for booze. Alcohol is the Number One Drug in the United States and can be very dangerous when mixed with certain medication.

Dear Ann Landers: This is for "Constant Reader With Kid Problem." We, to,, moved out where space is plentiful. When we started to remodel there was a lot of lumber and equipment around the place. The vandalism and theft by the young boys in our neighborhood was terrible. Also, they used our yard as a short- cut between two very popular homes.

Doing my landscaping, topsoil and rock work had me snowed, so I decided to hire those same energetic boys to help. We served soft drinks and lemonade. The work progressed beautifully. Before long I noticed the kids took pride in our yard and their work. Now they are careful where they park their bikes. Big brothers remind younger ones not to step on our grass. Dogs are called off our lawn. They look after our mail, the newspaper and the yard when we travel. We encourage them to use our croquet set. We do jig- saw puzzles together and roast marshmallows. It's nice to have them for friends.--Peorian

Dear Peorian: A new tiwst of an old slogan. "If you can't beat' em, join 'em." Only you invited them to join YOU. Thanks for sharing.

Mayor Ferrell proclaims MS Hope Chest Days

Mayor Frank Ferrell has proclaimed Saturday, Sunday and Monday as Multiple Sclerosis Hope Chest Appeal Days in Sikeston and is urging all concerned citizens to support the work of the St. Louis area chapter, National Multiple Sclerosis Society, in the fight against the mysterious disease.

The disease affects the central nervous system and strikes approximately 5,000 people annually in the area served by the St. Louis area chapter. The organization's purpose is to assist patients by securing funds to underwrite multiple scherosis research.

The mayor proclaimed the three days special Hope Chest Appeal Days in Sikeston. The national MS appeal continues throughout the month of May.

Royals victim of beer sale

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"Show me" say Missourians and the Royals, who wear Kansas City across their chests, are being shown.

Tuesday night, California's Nolan Ryans showed the Royals no mercy as he threw a nohitter at them.

Wednesday night, the Texas Rangers put on a show which featured 10 cent beer, boisterous fan support and a freak single to show up Kansas City 2-1.

Elsewhere in the American League, Detroit edged Boston 65 in 10 innings, the Yankees drubbed Milwaukee 11-4, Minnesota trimmed Chicago 8-6 and California knocked off Oakland 7-2.

In the National League, the Mets outscored Montreal 8-3, Philadelphia beat Pittsburgh 52, St. Louis stopped Chicago 31, Atlanta outlasted Houston 5-2 in 11 innings, Los Angeles defeated Cincinnati 8-6, also in 11 innings and San Diego stopped San Francisco 4-1.

"I guess we ought to have 10 cent beer night every night," said Ranger Manager Whitey Herzog. "There sure was a lot of enthusiasm in that crowd.... It helped."

And the Royals' overenthusiasm on the basepaths didn't hurt the Rangers' cause any. In the sixth, Paul Schall was thrown out after he overran third base.

Wildlife gets help

The New Madrid County Sportsman's Club has placed more than 4,000 pounds of grain and feed for turkeys and other wildlife in the flooded woods land east of New Madrid. Howard Crisler, club president is shown as he places corn on a floating log. Some of the woods area has been covered by water from the Mississippi River for more than 60 days.

Standard all-star

Pretty Miss Debbie Matlock admires the jacket patch of Parma's Dale Crews, a member of the Daily Standard's 15- player all-star basketball team this past season. Jacket patches, noting the honor of the all-star, all-academic and number one team of the Daily Standard, has been provided each of the senior members of the teams by the newspaper.

Minor league stars lose

NOVATO, Calif.-- Both of Southeast Missouri's young minor league pitchers experienced defeat last week, according to the Daily Standard's exclusive player periscope report.

Greg Buys, former State high school shot put champion from Kennett, lost his second game in three outings this season for the West Haven Yanks in the Eastern double A division. The big righthander gave up one hit, two walks in his brief appearance to see his earned run mark baloon to 6.00. On the season he has worked six innings, allowing six hits and six walks while striking out seven.

Gideon's Mark Littell, who led the American Association in wins last week, experienced his first defeat of the season after recording three straight victories in the triple A division for the Omaha Royals.

Littell, who only two summers ago was firing strikes for Gideon high school against the Sikeston Bulldogs in the district championship game at VFW stadium, has worked 31 innings so far this season, allowing 29 hits, 13 walks while fanning 17. The fireballing righthander sports a respectable 2.32 ERA.

Vanduser loses first

KELSO— Kenny Russel outpitched Bill Gillian 1-0 in a SEMO softball game here Wednesday night. The loss was the first for Vanduser after three wins. Gillian holds all the wins and losses for the team.

Both Kelso and Vanduser were held to four hits in the game. Kelso scored the winning run in the first inning on a base hit and two errors. Vanduser threatened in the sixth inning with runners on second and third but failed to cross the plate.

Vanduser host New Hamburg Friday night in a SEMO encounter.

Ozark has suggestion

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Philadelphia Manager Danny Ozark has a cure for what's ailing the Pittsburgh Pirates—a good swift kick in the pants.

Ozark's Phils scored four times in the first inning, then rode the five-hit pitching of Wayne Twitchell to a 5-2 victory over the Pirates Wednesday night.

It was Pittsburgh's seventh loss in its last eight games, and lowered the Bucs' season record to 13-16.

"When you're in a slump like they are, you just have to kick yourself in the pants a little," Ozark said. "But they're still the National League East champions, and you can't consider them a dead ball club."

Elsewhere in the National League, St. Louis beat the Chicago Cubs 3-1 in an afternoon game while at night, Atlanta beat Houston 5-2 in 11 innings, the New York Mets defeated Montreal 8-3, Cincinnati outlasted Los Angeles 8-6 in 11 innings and San Diego beat San Francisco 4-1.

In the American League, it was: New York Yankees 11, Milwaukee 4; Detroit 6, Boston 5 in 10 innings; Texas 2, Kansas City 1; Minnesota 8, Chicago White Sox 6, and California 7, Oakland 2.

A throwing error charged to Pittsburgh right fielder Manny Sanguillen opened the gates for Philadelphia in the first inning.

The Phils loaded the bases on an error by Pirate second baseman Dave Cash, a single by Del Unser and a walk. All three runners scored when Greg Luzinski singled to right and Sanguillen's throw to the infield skipped all the way into the Phils' dugout.

"It was the infield's fault more than Sanguillen's," explained Pittsburgh Manager Bill Virdon, noting that Sanguillen made the right play in throwing to second base to hold Luzinski at first.

"There's always supposed to be someone on the bag, either the second baseman or the shortstop," Virdon said.

Twitchell kept the Bucs in check until the ninth, when reliever Mac Scarce came in to get the last two outs.

Mike Tyson's two-run triple was the big blow as the Cardinals halted the Cubs' sevengame winning streak, even though Chicago's Glenn Beckert had two singles to raise his consecutive-game hitting streak to 24.

Dusty Baker's sacrifice fly in the 11th inning drove in the first of three Atlanta runs which broke a 2-2 tie.

Atlanta's Hank Aaron had earlier hit his 11th homer of the season, No. 684 lifetime, putting him exactly 30 back of Babe Ruth's magic mark of 714.

Unbeaten rookie Harry Parker won his fourth game of the season as the Mets shaded the Expos.

Dodger Joe Ferguson, having what he described as "my best night in the majors," collected four hits in five times at bat against the Reds, including a tie-breaking, two-run homer in the 11th inning.

San Diego's Mike Caldwell checked the Giants on just five hits and one unearned run. The Padres got 11 hits off San Francisco starter Juan Marichal, including a solo homer by John Grubb.

BOWLING

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Dave Soutar of Kansas City, Mo., defeated Dick Ritger of Hartford, Wis., 849-718 and took the top spot in the Masters Tournament of the American Bowling Congress.

Delay hurls 3-hitter

CHAFFEE— The Charleston Bluejays put their season record over the .500 mark with a 6-1 victory over the Red Devils here Wednesday afternoon. The Bluejays are 7-6 overall.

Junior Delay pitched a three- hitter and evened his season record at 2-2.

Chaffee opened the scoring in the bottom of the first inning as John Richbourg and David Little slapped doubles to score their lone run.

Charleston knotted the score in the top of the second and went ahead for good with two runs in the third.

The Bluejays added three insurance runs in the top of the seventh.

Steve Ritchey, David McDowell, and Junior Delay hit doubles for the Bluejays.

Delay limited the Red Devils to only three safeties, only one after the first inning. Charleston collected eight hits of loser Don Bess.

PIGWEED

Dyanap® stops it!

If you're a soybean or peanut grower, you recognize this Troublemaker. It robs your crop of sun and moisture. Chokes up harvesting equipment. Steals your profits! You need Double-Action Dyanap.

Dyanap combines a contact weed killer and a pre-emergence herbicide. Kills seedling weeds on contact, when you apply it. Then stays around to knock out late germinating weeds for up to 6 weeks.

Dyanap does its job, then disappears . . . with no trace of harmful residue. Come in and get your supply of Dyanap by Uniroyal . . . the herbicide that silences the Troublemakers!

State collecting delinquent tax

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The state has collected $68,997 in delinquent motor vehicle and sales tax penalties in the last two months, says the associate director of the state Department of Revenue in charge of transportation.

Associate Director Russell Sloan said Wednesday his department began a routine check of files in fee offices throughout the state April 1.

He said the amount collected so far "represents just the tip of the iceberg."

Recently, Revenue Director James R. Spradling said as much as $100 million in sales taxes has not been collected in the past three years.

A federal grand jury has been reconvened in Kansas City to investigate the tax collections in that area.

The U.S. Justice Department has been investigating charges that revenue department employes have received gifts from businesses for specifying sales taxes less than the amount due.

Sloan said the revenue department employes in all state license offices have been ordered to check for the unpaid taxes.

Victims warned against 'disaster chasers'

ST. LOUIS — Victims of the recent flood disaster in Missouri are warned to watch for the migratory contractors, suppliers and salesmen who chase disasters for profit.

On the orders of President Richard Nixon, the Small Business Administration has warned victims of the storm that these fast- talking fly- by- night specialists are moving into Missouri.

The agency emphasized that SBA does not charge any fee for its services, that it never endorses any contractor, merchant, repairman, retailer, or supplier, and that all SBA employes working in disaster areas carry federal credentials, which disaster victims should ask to see when they are approached by a person posing as a representative of the agency.

The agency recommends that flood victims check out any contractors or salesmen before they sign a contract.

Francis X. Tobin, federal co-ordinating officer of the Office of Emergency Preparedness in St. Louis, issued a statement Tuesday, saying:

"In the past 24 hours reports have reached my office that there are individuals who are soliciting the business of disaster victims. They are offering to complete Small Business Administration loan applications in return for a $25 fee.

"I want to re-emphasize the statements that I made earlier concerning individuals who solicit money in order to perform work of this sort. These people are trying to make money out of the personal and financial problems of disaster victims.

"No federal or state employe will ask for any money to provide any of the assistance available to flood disaster victims."

For information concerning this problem or any other aspect of the disaster assistance program, phone toll free to 1-800-392-3740.

Boyd Corder, U. S. Small Business Administration Eastern Missouri disaster branch office manager, today reiterated that Southeast Missouri flood victims may apply for SBA long- term, low-interest disaster loans at Sikeston Activity Center, 201 S. Kingshighway.

The Office of Emergency Preparedness has closed many individual disaster assistance centers, but SBA presently has offices still open. Two mobile teams with SBA officers are still in operation in Eastern Missouri. SBA has established four satellite offices in the Maryland Heights disaster branch office to serve the needs of Eastern Missouri flood victims.

Hours at the Sikeston office are from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. seven days a week until further notice.

SBA loans may be made to repair or replace homes, personal property, businesses, farm residences, churches and charitable institutions.

The maximum that SBA can lend to repair or replace the above property is equal to the amount of damage occurred less any insurance or any other recovery.

SBA makes long- term loans in Missouri to the 81 counties and the City of St. Louis which have been declared disaster areas by President Nixon. The maximum SBA disaster home loan is $50,000. Personal property loans may not exceed $10,000. However, $55,000 is allowed for a combination of both home and personal property. Flood victims have until June 29 to file SBA loan applications.

Farmers are eligible for SBA disaster loans to repair or replace damaged dwellings and household contents.

SBA will cancel repayment of up too $5,000 of the principal of the disaster loan's total to each loan recipient with the understanding that the canceled amount will be used to restore or replace the applicant's real and personal property to its pre-disaster condition.

Following are suggestions offered for expediting loan applications:

SBA officials urge applicants to take photos of their damaged property prior to clean-up of same.

If the applicants personally bring their applications to the Sikeston office, their applications will be screened for completeness and if an application is accepted, it is then ready for loss varification and processing. It is desirable that SBA loan applications be returned in person.

Applicants should return applications with itemized lists of damaged personal property, as well as an estimate of repair and replacement of damaged property (Form 739). The SBA suggests that applicants make a list of damaged or destroyed items by going through the house, a room at a time, and making note of each article needing replacement or repairs.

Applicants should estimate the cost of replacing the items lost at pre-disaster prices.

SBA officers find one in 10 applications are not signed upon being returned.

In all loans of over $5,000, a deed is required. Applicants frequently overlook including proof of ownership on real estate, as well as last year's federal tax return which SBA uses to determine repayment ability.

SBA officers need applicant's temporary and permanent phone numbers.

Eligiblity of the data is also important.

SBA officials caution that the agency does not endorse any supplier or contractor.

SBA personel do no charge a fee for their services.

Applications may be obtained free of charge at the SBA offices.

There is no fee for loss application verification.

Anyone paying a fee for any of the mentioned services should contact the nearest branch of SBA.

Rural extension programs will not be affected by cuts

JEFFERSON CITY— Sen. Nelson B. Tinnin, Hornersville Democrat, said today that funding cuts suggested for the University of Missouri Extension Service are being cut from the service's urban programs.

Tinnin said rural extension programs will not be affected by the $2 million cut proposed by the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Tinnin said the urban legislators had asked for the cuts in city extension programs because they felt the programs were of little value.

The appropriations committee felt that, if the urban people did not want the extension program in their areas, the academic program should be expanded. The committees has never intended to cut rural extension services Tinnin said.

Tinnin stressed that the cut was a recommendation only, and had not become law.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor:

I think it should be brought to the public's attention that gov. money is being thrown away in Charleston.

I have been a Volunteer Red Cross Case worker at the Armory, where H.U.D., H.E.W., S.B.A., etc all have representatives. These are under the direction of Mr. Robert Hite from the office of Emergency Preparedness. Although Red Cross has been trying hard to stick to their guidelines, which state that a person must be suffering undue hardship DUE TO THE FLOOD, Mr. Hite who has no jurisdiction over Red Cross continues to interfere with their guidelines.

I was told it was none of my g-d- business how much money a person had in the bank, they were to be helped if they walked in there even if they were millionaires. I couldn't believe this and checked with the office of O.E.P. in St. Louis. I was told by them that anyone who came in was to receive help, regardless of who they were. After asking if that meant the butcher, the baker, the electrician etc., whose income was not affected by the flood, the answer I received was an emphatic "yes"

You'd better believe that every free-loader in the county is down there getting everything he wants.

One man was literally coerced into signing up for unemployment aid when he did not want it and told them so.

And we wonder why our government is on the verge of bankruptcy.

Sincerely,
Mrs. R. T. Yates
Charleston

May 7, 1973

Mr. Charles Blanton
Editor, Sikeston Standard

Dear Mr. Blanton —

On Mar. 22, '73 my mother's funeral and burial was conducted in Sikeston — I'm writing to express my most sincere appreciation to your fine police force for their support of the funeral procession from O'Guinn Funeral Home to the Sikeston Cemetery — it was especially a beautiful sight to observe one or more of them with hats removed, an expression not often customary in large city funeral processions. I am deeply grateful to your police force. Will you please find some way to express thanks from a grateful family —

The Lelia J. Hinson Family
Regards,
Harold C. Hinson

P.S. I left SeMo (Morehouse) in '41 as a young draftee but have never forgotten the wonderful people there — so warm and friendly —

Earl Braswell

When the Suspension Bridge spanning the Ohio River at Cincinnati was built in 1866, or thereabouts, it was a remarkable piece of engineering of ropes and cables. It was planned and builty by John Roebling, and at that time, the largest of its kind. Creative thinking being the forerunner of some engineering feats, Mr. Roebling later planned the famous Brooklyn bridge when he was injured and died just three weeks after starting on it, and his son finally finished his dream some 14 years later.

Creative thinking also solved the water problems by designing Refiners— completely automatic 4- in- 1 refining unit. The water refiner refines, polishes, filters and softens the water, furnishing you clean, clear, sparkling refreshing water from every tap in your home. It is economical to operate too- just pennies a day. Call. . .

What's the Law?

The case of the clock-eyed lawmakers

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

The regular session of a state legislature was fixed by law not to exceed 60 days. When the 60th day arrived, unfortunately, the weary legislators found themselves helplessly bogged down with a lot of work to complete. An imaginative group, however, they resolved their problem quite simply. They merely stopped the official clock from running in their legislative chamber and proceeded unperturbed to finish their chores.

It was thus that a certain criminal statute was enacted at 11:30 P.M. during the 60th day of the legislative session. In reality, however, the merry little lawmakers had enacted the statute well into the 61st day. Consequently, when Seena was arrested for violating that particular law, she insisted that it was as void as outer space.

"You can't stop time by stopping a clock." she argued in court. "Since the statute was passed after the legislative session had actually ended, the legislature had no authority to enact it and I can't be convicted of violating it."

"Of course she can," responded the district attorney. "Stopping the official clock is a common and reasonable practice in many state legislatures. If it wasn't permitted, lawmakers would get clock- eyed trying to complete their work within the prescribed time."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you uphold the validity of the clock- eyed statute and convict Seena of violating it?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that the state legislature had no right to extend its session by stopping the clock. Where the law fixes the duration of a regular legislative session, noted the judge, the legislature loses its powers at the end of that period. And, concluded the judge, if it's a 60- day session, any law passed on the 61st day is invalid and of no effect.

(Based upon a 1963 West Virginia Sup. Court of Appeals Decision)

The Prayer from The Upper Room

This one thing I do..., I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus. [Philippians 3:13- 14]

PRAYER: Divine Father, help me to envision the perfect goal for my life as a committed Christian. Empower me this day to "press toward the mark." In Jesus' name. Amen.

comes from fees and grants within the departments.

Appropriations chairman James "Jay" Russell, D-Florissant, objected to the change to allow the $6.4 million for the veterinary building.

Later he was successful in cutting $2.1 million from the university's budgeted repairs for two buildings at the Columbia campus.

Russell said the money for the veterinary school would hurt the state revenue reserve, which he estimated will be $38.5 million if the appropriations bills now being acted on are adopted with their present amounts.

Russell had not included the veterinary building money in the version he submitted to the committee. Russell also did not include $472,000 in capital improvement money for Missouri Southern College at Joplin and for Missouri Western College at St. Joseph.

Russell has asked for an attorney general's opinion on the two school's funding because he says state law requires they raise capital improvement money by local tax levies.

The Senate also passed and sent to the House bills to:

—Have police judges in all but first class counties be elected or appointed, and have compensation provided.

—Authorize salary increases for commissioners and employes of the St. Louis County election board.

—Establish guidelines for the management of investments of religious, educational and charitable institutions.

Have owners of rental vehicles and trailers pay taxes on each rental transaction, rather than a sales tas on the vehicles.

The House Appropriations Committee, in other action, held up its approval on a $750,000 emergency appropriations bill to help provide temporary housing for flood victims.

The committee will hear testimony from representatives of agencies involved Thursday to determine if the aid will be in time to help flood victims.

Senate will not act on bills not debated

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Senate gave tentative approval to three bills Wednesday night before voting to take no further action on Senate bills not already debated this session.

A bill to allow public employes to bargain collectively was wirthdrawn by its sponsor, Sen. Donald Gralike, D-St. Louis, after encountering opposition during lengthy debate.

Gralike placed the bill on the informal calendar where he said it could die "its natural death."

In his closing speech on the bill, Gralike said the legislature obviously was not ready to grant public employes, some of whom are on welfare, a forum to present their needs.

Gralike said a roll call vote on an amendment which he said gutted the bill identified the opposition to the proposal.

A bill to allow local governments to run the state's motor vehicle license fee offices saw brief light when it was given a chance for debate.

But Sen. Richard M. Webster, R-Carthage, one of the bill's sponsors, allowed the bill to die on the informal calendar when he yielded to another senator's bill.

The Senate gave tentative approval to a bill that would require regulation of private security agencies by the superintendent of the state highway patrol.

Also given tentative approval was a bill to allow women to take legal action within two years, instead of the present six months, for employment discrimination.

A bill to place all employers under workmen's compensation laws was also given tentative approval.

Sen. Albert M. Spradling, D-Cape Girardeau, sponsor, said the bill brings state workmen's compensation laws into compliance with federal regulations.

He said the bill also increases death and disability payments to all employes.

On a motion by Sen. Lawrence J. Lee, D-St. Louis, majority floor leader, the Senate voted to cease action on any additional Senate bills not already given tentative approval in order to begin business on bills passed by the House and awaiting Senate action.

The action means about 57 Senate bills which were not acted on are dead for this session.

Technically, the bills could be taken up for action by a special vote. However, under usual procedure there will be no action on the bills before the deadline for floor action June 15.

Earlier, the Senate passed and sent to the House 26 other bills, including one to establish a Division of Juvenile Delinquency and Youth Services.

The bill, sponsored by Sen. John Schneider, D-Florissant, would replace the State Board of Training School and oversee juvenile treatment programs.

The measure drew criticism from rural senators because of a minimum standards provision they said might increase the cost of hiring juvenile officers.

The House Appropriations Committee approved an $87.1 million capital improvements bill, after amending it to include a new $6.4 million veterinary school building at the University of Missouri.

Gov. Christopher S. Bond had requested capital improvements totaling only $45.8 million, but the committee made major increases in spending for state hospitals, colleges and mental institutions.

Only $6.2 million of the bill comes from state general revenue funds.

The bulk of the money comes from $71.8 million in federal revenue sharing funds. Another $4.6 million

Argument halts court

A dispute over courtroom procedure between City Court Judge Jim Sickal and City Attorney Kenneth Dement brought Wednesday's City Court proceedings to an abrupt halt, with the dismissal of several cases following an exchange of words between Dement and Sickal.

One police officer said that in his 12 years of attending court, he had "never seen anything like it." Another officer termed it "a circus."

The trouble began, according to Dement, when Sickal objected to a question Dement asked a witness in a trial of a case involving Denver Graham, 215 N. Frisco. Graham was charged with interferring with a police officer.

Graham's a night watchman at the Shoe Factory. According to police, an officer who had been sent to back up another policeman parked his squad car in the Malone Ave. entrance to the Shoe factory parking lot.

Graham allegedly went up to the police officer and told him it was against company regulations for anyone to park there. The officer told him he was just covering for another policeman and would leave as soon as he was no longer needed. The officer said Graham kept on arguing and distracted him from covering the first policeman.

During the questioning of one of the witnesses, Dement said Sickal objected to a question he asked. Dement said he believed the objection out of order. He said judges rule on objections, but do not make objections.

After several minutes of verbal fireworks, Sickal ruled that Graham was innocent.

Dement said he asked that Sickal step down from the bench and not hear the case, because he was prejudiced. When Sickal refused to disqualify himself, Dement dismissed the remaining cases on the docket. The cases may be refiled at a later date.

Sickal said today he did not object to the question, he merely told the witness the question was irrelevant to the case and need not be answered. Sickal said it was at this point that Dement asked him to disqualify himself. Sickal said he would not disqualify himself because he was only ruling on what was relevant to the case.

He said he told Dement that if the city was unhappy with the ruling, it could appeal the decision. Sickal said he was just defending the rights of the defendant.

He said it was at this point that he told Graham that the city failed to prove that he had interfered with the police officer. Sickal said finding Graham innocent was

110 acres added to Latonka

Officials of the Army Corps of Engineers Tuesday granted Cotton Boll Area Girl Scout Council, Inc., 110 acres of additional land on Lake Wappapello. The additional leased property makes a total of 368.5 acres of property where the council's Camp Latonka is owned and operated.

Tom W. Simpkins, chief management and disposal branch, real estate division, Department of the Army, Memphis District, Corps of Engineers; Paul R. Geer, chairman of management and disposal branch, real estate division, U.S. Army Engineer Division, Lower Mississippi Valley, Vicksburg, Miss.; and Miss Lucille T. Latta, attorney acquisition branch, real estate division, Vicksburg, Miss.; personally delivered the lease Tuesday to the Cotton Boll Council office headquarters in Sikeston. The lease was signed and formally presented to Miss Ilena Aslin, executive director, and Miss Doris Brown, field advisor and camp director.

Today a copy of the lease was personally delivered by Geer, Simpkins and Miss Latta to Taylor Miles of Kennett who played a major role in obtaining the additional property.

The council plans to reserve the property as a wilderness camping area. It will be used for backpacking, nature hikes, exploration trips and wildlife refuge.

In recognition of their longtime interest in the work of Camp Latonka, Cotton Boll Area Girl Scout Council Tuesday presented Girl Scout recognition plaques to Simpkins and Geer.

Local station burglarized

Riley's Sunoco Service Station on East Malone Avenue was broken into sometime between midnight Wednesday and 6:40 a.m. today, according to police.

The burglars took a tune-up machine valued at $700, two cases of motor oil valued at $20, two batteries valued at $24 each, $64 worth of sparkplugs and $60 to $70 from the cash register. The thieves also took a number of tires. The exact number and value were undetermined, police said.

The thieves entered the station by breaking out a window in a garage door.

The men are working on the $545,000 elementary school being built for the R-5 district next to Scott County Central High School. Work is about 60 per cent completed with students expected to move into the school in mid-September. The building will house 325 to 350 students from the Morley and Vanduser schools, which may have to remain open a short time this fall until the new building is ready for occupancy.

Siren to be tested Friday

The new tornado warning siren installed atop a Scott County Milling Co. grain bin last week will be tested at noon Friday, Gerald Howard, city civil defense director, announced today.

Anyone who hears the siren from any distance is asked to call the fire department so it can be determined how far the siren carries, Howard said.

Both the warning signal of a one- to- three minute blast and the all- clear signal of three short blasts will be tested.

Thatcher Scism

Scism Rotary governor

LAUSANNE, Switzerland— G. Thatcher Scism, former president of the Sikeston, Mo. Production Credit Association, today was elected top Rotary official for his home area by delegates to the Rotary International convention meeting in Lausanne.

Scism is one of 345 men from 149 countries of the Rotary world elected as a district governor for the 1973- 74 year. As governor of District 609, he will coordinate 39 clubs in his district.

A Rotarian since 1962, he is a member and past president of the Rotary Club of Sikeston, one of more than 15,000 clubs around the world.

Rotary International is the association of all the clubs and is administered by a 14- man board of directors, six of whom were elected to two- year terms (1973- 75 today. Six other directors have one more year to serve, and the other 1973- 74 board members are the president (William C. Carter of London, Battersea, England) and president- elect (William R. Robbins of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., U.S.A.) The other international officers of the organization are the district governors. Rotary was only seven years old in 1912 when the forerunner of the current district system was set up. At that time there were eight districts and 50 Rotary clubs, compared to 345 districts and over 15,000 Rotary clubs today. There were about 5,000 Rotarians then, and now there are three quarters of a million.

The Rotary clubs which district governors administer are made up of business and professional men, each representing a different occupation. Their common bond is service— within the club, on the community level and on the international level.

The district governor visits every club in his district at least once during his year and visits with club officers, offering suggestions to the club for bettering itself.

Watergate hearings open

WASHINGTON (AP) — A tribunal of seven senators opened today historic hearings into the Watergate scandals, and an aide in President Nixon's reelection campaign testified there was no doubt that final political authority rested with the White House.

The leadoff witness, Robert C. Odle Jr., who served as director of administration at the Committee for the Re-Election of the President, said he did not known of political sabotage or surveillance by that organization.

"Only what I've read in the newspapers," Odle, 28, testified before a crowded, nationally televised Senate hearing.

Much of Odle's testimony dealt with the administrative setup at the Nixon campaign committee.

Odle specifically denied that he destroyed any documents involving the Watergate affair— although he said the committee had shredding machines at "convenient points" in its offices.

He also denied receiving transcripts of wiretaps.

Odle said he was "absolutely not" involved in bugging activities.

He said he hired James W. McCord as a security man for the re-election committee. He also said he fired McCord, later convicted as a Watergate conspirator.

Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., asked whether the Committee for the Re-election of the President was solely under control of the President and his top aides.

Odle described the relationship as one of cooperation, not technical or legal control.

"Is it fair to say that the committee was set up, organized and directed from the White House?" Talmadge asked.

"Those people who were at the White House had influence over the committee, they gave it direction," Odle testified. "But the campaign director, of course, was not at the White House. He came from the Justice Department."

That drew laughter from the standing-room audience. The man at the Justice Department was former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, now under indictment in connection with a secret campaign contribution.

"There was no doubt as to where the ultimate authority lay, was there?" Talmadge asked.

"No, sir," said Odle.

Odle said he heard of the Watergate burglary on Saturday afternoon, June 17, 1972. It had happened early that morning.

He said he was told of a burglary at Democratic headquarters.

"And I said to some people who were in that meeting ... I said that could never happen here because I've got a guy working for me named Jim McCord," Odle said.

McCord was security man for the Nixon committee—and one of the Watergate burglars.

Following an opening statement defending Nixon and the majority of his campaign workers, Odle was questioned in detail about the setup of the Committee for the Re-election of the President, and its lines of authority.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., opened the hearings, and said his panel "must probe into assertions that the very system itself has been subverted and its foundations shaken."

Ervin said Watergate disclosures have "cast a black cloud of distrust over our entire society. Our citizens do not know whom to believe ..."

To dispel that, he said, the Senate committee must find the truth.

"The nation and history itself are watching us," he said. "We cannot fail our mission."

Odle testified that former presidential staff chief H. R. Haldeman played a key role, along with former Atty. Gen. Mitchell, in selecting staff members for the Nixon campaign committees.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

You get a higher score when you count your blessings rather than when you add up your troubles.

* * *

Congress Jerry Litton (Dem.-Mo.) who represents our neighbors in Northwest Missouri has come up with a new idea dealing with those who evaded military service in the Vietnam war.

We quote:

"Since we agreed in Article 21 of the cease-fire agreement to help rebuild North Vietnam and since many feel that amnesty should be given those who refused to serve provided they give some type of service to mankind in return, then we can accomplish both of these objectives by sending those people who seek amnesty to North Vietnam (instead of money) to help rebuild their country.

"If those in America who evaded military service loved the North Vietnamese too much to fight them, perhaps they still love them enought to help them in their reconstruction program. The sickening stories of torture related back to the American people by our returning POWs should not indicate that the North Vietnamese have any love for Americans.

"I personally do not favor aid to North Vietnam or unconditional amnesty, but if we are to aid North Vietnam and if we are going to permit those who refused to serve when called to work for mankind in return for amnesty, then I see no reason why we can't accomplish both of these objectives by sending those who seek amnesty to North Vietnam to serve a given number of years in helping rebuild that country in lieu of money which is so badly needed not only for domestic programs here in America, but also to bolster the value of the sagging U. S. dollar."

Not a bad idea, Jerry -- and how about throwing Jane Fonda and a few others into the deal, too?

THE CURELEST MONTH

As far as 1973 has been concerned, T. S. Eliot could not have been more right; April has been a cruel, cruel month. The rivers have flooded and then flooded some more. With a few exceptions, the weather has been miserable; gray and wet. Food is too expensive to eat. The Blues have failed again in the Stanley Cup playoffs. And as for baseball, everybody, including the Cardinals, must already be wishing the season were over. At the risk of being called a nattering nabob of negativism by a Washington official whose name we have been allowed to forget, it has been a rotten month. Were we not by nature progressive and optimistic, we would call for the impeachment of April and a restoration of January, which held no promises and stuck clearly and comfortably to form: We would tell the hounds of spring to run like hell on winter's traces.

NATIONAL PERSPECTIVE

The Report of America's Sound Transportation Review Organization is entitled "The American Railroad Industry." However, it does much more than set forth immediate and long-range programs to restore the rails to a position of strength in the transportation system. It brings into perspective the haphazard and costly public policies that are bringing chaos to the entire transportation industry. It deals with a great many specific situations where corrective action is needed.

For example, it has long been known that one of the gravest rail problems has resulted from pouring unlimited billions of tax dollars into other forms of transport without regard to the competitive impact on the rails. One rail spokesman notes that the federal government has spent $229 billion in the past 15 years alone for modes of transportation competing with railroads. On this problem, the ASTRO Report observes, "The problems of national interest in surface transportation can be addressed most directly and effectively by the creation of a federal transportation fund. The resources fed into the fund should be distributed ... to further a balance transportation system as the needs of each mode are indicated in the public interest. The general public benefits to be realized should include consideration of issues closely related to transportation system as the needs of each mode are indicated in the public interest. The general public benefits to be realized should include consideration of issues closely related to transportation, such as reduction of pollution and urban congestion, and better land use ... As a first step, the present highway trust fund must become part of a new general transportation fund which would encompaas railroad assistance."

Of all the studies and reports that have been made, over the years, relative to transportation and the railroads, none can surpass the ASTRO Report from the standpoint of thoroughness and logic. Its recommendations are the culmination of the efforts of the nation's leading transportation experts. They offer a way to restore long- term stability to the transportation industry within the taxpaying, private enterprise system.

THE END IS TOTAL FORCE

Advocates of the planned economy, especially all-out wage and price controls as a means of combating inflationary pressures, can see the ultimate consequences of this form of repression in the riots and strikes that overtook Poland a short while ago. According to The National Observer, the revolt started off peacefully with workers marching in protest agains stiff government decreed price increases for food, fuel and clothing. Before long the protest spread throughout the communist - governed nation "... in the worst spasm of rioting in 14 years." The rebellion was put down by force -- communist style.

No one can conceive protests over government controls reaching the point in the United States that they apparently have in communist countries like Poland. But the principle is the same, whenever the free market is displaced by a system of controls, force of one kind or another must be exerted in the place of the natural law of supply and demand. The greater the dislocations of a government-planned, regulated economy become, the greater the force that must be applied to make the system work. The end of the road is either abandon of controls and return to the free market or the imposition of a police state, under which consumer "options" are removed by troops and tanks.

OPERATION RESPECT

Neither government action nor the exhortation of a President of the United States can instill character and a sense of morality and purpose in the people. These virtues must come from the "grassroots". They stem from individual action and from the voluntary inspired efforts of character - building groups and organizations of all kinds. Above all, they cannot be bought with government handouts.

An example of the kind of character building that makes a nation strong can be seen in the Boys' Clubs of America. This organization is conducting a program known as "Operation Respect," designed to increase respect for the law, the rights of others, for private property and the American form of government. The program has been made possible through a $10,000 grant from the J. Edgar Hoover Foundation. Its specific objectives are to create positive attitudes toward law enforcement personnel and other responsibile community officials; to teach respect for property and the rights of others; to promote the understanding of laws and government; and to develop an appreciation of Constitutional rights and the nation's heritage. There are some 850,000 members of the Boys' Clubs of America. They participate in the activities of 870 local clubs in 600 cities throughout the country.

Speaking to the Board of Directors of the Boys' Clubs of America, Vice President Agnew observed: "I can't commend too highly the work that has been done by your national organization since 1906 ... America urgently needs more of this kind of interest in our young people from the private sector- - intimate, personal leadership that inspires them to achieve and excell ... " Organizations like Boys' Clubs are wellsprings of character from which flow the strength and vitality of our country.

FM IS GROWING UP

"FM radio is making fast progress in programming, set penetration, and big advertiser acceptance. But it still is a long way from a major breakthrough as a big- time national advertising vehicle," says Media Decisions Magazine.

To prove their contention, they quote these figures: In 1960, total FM sets in the U.S. numbered 1,048,000. At the end of 1969, there were 22,581,498, and this figure does not include the FM sets that are a part of a TV-phonograph combination. The total estimate is around 25 million.

One of the major hurdles for FM is auto set penetration. The ratio of FM to AM in autos is well under one in ten. Most of the FM sets in the U.S. were made overseas and the cost is in reach of low incomes. Because of that and the fact that it is basically a music medium, FM is developing rapidly among the young.

In some metropolitan areas, FM ratings are quite spectacular. But still hampered by meagre promotion and its old image of "too specialized", FM has yet to experience parity with AM in acceptance by national buyers of radio.

SECOND THOUGHTS
BY WALTER LIPPMANN

For many years columnist Walter Lippmann was the "darling" of the American left, the statists and the "elite" in our country. They hailed his criticisms of anti- communist foreign policy and endorsed his promotion of collectivism as the reigning philosophy.

But now, at age 83, Walter Lippmann may be joining the ranks of disillusioned "liberals" who have come to realize that the ideas they preached so dilligently have seriously undermined and severely weakened the very foundations of our nation.

In an interview with a Washington Post reporter, Lippmann condemend the view that "man is essentially good and can be made perfect by making the environment perfect, and the environment can be made perfect by taxing the mass of people to spend money for improving it."

On the contrary, Lippmann noted, "Man is not naturally good, nor is his nature perfectible by economic means."

When it was suggested that government should deal with the causes of poverty, Lippmann responded: "Can anybody know what the causes are? There are many causes: laziness, wastefulness. Those are traits inherent in human beings. Some make for poverty and some make for wealth."

Lippmann also expressed concern about the deterioration of family life in the U.S., denying that it was a result of the Vietnam war. He said it was the effect of an undermining process that had been going on for many years, called it "dangerous," and said the destruction of the family "threatens to produce the chaos of modern times." It is unlikely that many of those who admired Mr. Lippmann so much in earlier days will heed his second thoughts. HLH

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Be glad you don't grow at the rate an opossum does. As an adult it reaches 28,000 times its birth weight. If this were true of you and you had been an eight-pound baby, you would now weigh 112 tons, too much for even a mother to love.

The health care you can get readily depends to a great extent on where you live in America. For example, there are 133 counties which have no resident physician. However, only 0.2 per cent of the U.S. population lives in these counties.

The beard of a man who lets it grow numbers about 13,000 whiskers. They grow at a density of about 390 per square inch on his cheeks, 580 per square inch on his chin.

Know your calendar: In the ancient Roman calendar, ascribed to Romulus, the year had only 10 months. The last was called December because it came from a word meaning 10. But when two more months were added, it was still placed last despite the fact its name was no longer appropriate in that position. The Saxons called the last month "winter-monath" or "heligh-monath," because it contained Christmas.

It isn't disease alone that keeps us from becoming centenarians. One of the quickest ways to extend the average life of the American male would be to eliminate the lethal toll of accidents, homicides, and suicides.

Quotable notables: "There are plenty of new sights under the sun for those who have eyes to see. Nothing is done finally and right. Nothing is done positively and completely. In science, probably 99 per cent of the knowable has yet to be discovered." — Lincoln Steffens.

A sick society: The world may not be crazy but it drives many people mad. One out of 10 Americans suffers from some form of mental illness, mild or severe. Mental disease has become a problem affecting 21 million U.S. families — one out of four.

A rut: The nation's leading chain cave operator, Lester B. Dill, operator of Meramec Caverns on Highway 66 in Missouri, claims he has been in more than 15,000 caves throughout the world — more than anyone else in history. What's your claim to fame?

Productive: Why is agriculture so important? Because if he lived only on wild plants and wild game, each human being would need eight square miles in which to forage. But thanks to proper soil cultivation, that same amount of acreage can now support on the average more than 5,000 people.

Worth remembering: "One of the reasons so many politicians are keeping their mouths shut today is that they are afraid if they open them a foot will fall out."

Folklore: Hairs from a black cat have curative powers. Cats born in the month of May make poor mousers. If a cat sits with its back to the fire, expect a storm soon. Put butter on a cat's paws to keep it from straying from a new house you move into.

It was Austin O'Malley who observed, "God shows His contempt for wealth by the kind of person He selects to receive it."

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:

Pulling the Strings: Haldeman

WASHINGTON— At the center of the Watergate web, investigators now believe, is the deposed White House major domo H. R. Haldeman. Most of the strings in the Watergate tangle seem to lead back to him.

String No. 1-- Most of the men implicated in the scandal belonged to his tight little circle. Such key Watergate figures as John Dean, Jeb Magruder, Dwight Chapin and Gordon Strachan reported directly to him.

String No. 2-- Haldeman was such a meticulous manager, investigators have concluded, that the Watergate operation couldn't have occurred without his knowledge. He stayed behind the scenes, using loyal aides to do the dirty work. He kept them on such a tight leash, as one insider put it, that "they couldn't sneeze without his permission." During a presidential appearance that Chapin scheduled, for instance, another aide asked Chapin to arrange for President Nixon to walk five feet out of his way to greet an important labor leader. Chapin said he couldn't do it without Haldeman's approval.

String No. 3-- Jeb Magruder has told prosecutors that ex-Attorney General John Mitchell opposed the Waterbugging, although he went along reluctantly in the end. It was Dean, according to Magruder, who kept insisting on going ahead with the scheme. Dean, in turn, has said he took his directions from Haldeman.

String No. 4-- Haldeman controlled a $350,000 cash fund that apparently was used to bribe the Watergate defendants to keep their mouths shut. The money was delivered by Haldeman's assistant, Gordon Strachan, to the apartment of campaign aide Fred LaRue. Like the others, LaRue was also a Haldeman loyalist.

Investigating Haldeman

Not long after the Waterbuggers were arrested, our White House sources tipped us off that the plot had Haldeman's imprint all over it. Although these sources had demonstrated their reliability in the past, we knew they disliked Haldeman intensely. We therefore investigated cautiously and could find no direct Haldeman involvement.

But we were able to report on August 22, 1972, that Haldeman was calling the political shots for President Nixon. "Operating out of the White House on government salary," we wrote, "Haldeman has tried to remain the invisible man of the campaign.

"But we have established that most of the important campaign decisions have come through him... Haldeman issues political directives, approved campaign contracts, receives political reports and coordinates campaign activities... Those on the inside say he is the most powerful man in the 1972 campaign, second only to the President himself."

It took us until February 25, 1973, before we could link Haldeman's name for the first time to Watergate. Still, we could only report that "the Watergate tracks (lead) right up to Haldeman's door." We noted that FBI agents had been forbidden from questioning him. "Yet," we wrote, "they were able to trace Watergate clues to Haldeman aides, who never make a move without asking Haldeman."

Then we described how he operated. "Haldeman exercises his power," we reported, "from behind the scenes, carefully staying in the darkest part of the President's shadow. He has surrounded himself with bright, disciplined, younger men who don't question his instructions.

"He deliberately brought them to the White House from comparative obscurity, with few political ties, and, therefore, less risk of divided loyalties. Their loyalty to Haldeman, say our sources, exceeds even their allegiance to the President."

Diagnosis of Haldeman

Haldeman has been described in news accounts as a pragmatist, a managerial type, who was more interested in efficiency that ideology. This is not the impression we get. On the contrary, he has strong convictions, which he sought to impose upon the country.

Like the President, Haldeman grew up in California when it was still the golden state, with orange groves, clean air and a feeling it was indeed the land of promise. His grandfather migrated to California early in the century, made a small fortune as a building supply dealer and started the Better America Foundation in 1922. Haldeman's father, echoing the religious fundamentalism of Nixon's Quaker mother, devoted considerable energy to the Salvation Army.

There has been no hint that Haldeman pocketed any of the campaign cash that passed through his hands. He used it strictly to gain political power and achieve political goals.

Those who know Haldeman describe him as the sort of ideologue who would violate the law to achieve law and order. He believes fiercely in the rightness of the Nixon cause. To this end, Haldeman sought to bolster the power of the White House.

He spoke privately of "one-man rule," of President Nixon's "right" to run the country. As Haldeman saw it, the President was the only official elected by all the people. Haldeman felt this gave Richard Nixon a mandate, particularly after the 1972 landslide, to set the nation's policies and, if necessary, to ride roughshod over Congress, whose members individually represented limited constituencies.

The President, in turn, delegated much of his power to Haldeman. Explained a White House source: "The President had a dread that the demands of office would leave him no time to think. Bob Haldeman freed the President from the details that otherwise would drain his time."

White House Junta Tried To Quarantine President Nixon--- Completely

WASHINGTON— It has not been reported-- but so desperately did the Haldeman-Ehrlichman junta attempt to isolate the President so they actually could run this nation from a single White House phone, that they maneuvered to remove Mr. Nixon's personal secretary, Rose Mary Woods, and replace her with a mannequin of their own.

This would have slashed one of the few non- junta conduits to the President. This would have taken from him one of the few "ship crews" he could trust. Rose Mary has been with Dick Nixon for some 25 years. She's virtually part of the family.

This report comes from an absolutely impeccably objective source. Rose Mary was the one person Haldeman sometimes had to stumble over to get to the President.

But Rose Mary Woods is a pro. Her brother Joe Woods is an ex- FBI agent. It can be reported that when she heard the junta wanted to shift her to some "vital" library- type research work, her words to them, it's reported, were "drop dead."

This is not a Watergate story. This is bigger than it and them and all of us. This is part of the strange Orwellian, often Kafkaesque effort of three, perhaps four, men to run the government in Big Brother's fashion. I mean just that. This junta went in for far more wiretapping and espionage than is believed. Men who have watched this operation inside the White House but from just outside the pale so believe. They ask, is it illogical to believe that other forces besides the Democratic National Committee were bugged, wiretapped and spied on? There were more powerful opponents than the weak, bankrupt, divisive, amateurishly directed Democratic Committee. The junta knew as much about those other anti- Nixon forces as they did about the Larry O'Brien operation until mid-June.

Why is it difficult to believe the junta did not bug or tap so-called "neutral" organizations soon to become politically active?

The junta was in the business of delivering whole departments to the right callers. It worried only about the FBI under the late J. Edgar Hoover. So it began dealing with some of his aides.

Files were called for and leaked. Stories were spread that in his last few years "the old man" was senile, that he was not interested in organized crime (though for the first time the Bureau's special agents began infiltrating the Mafia itself), that he was not even concerned with domestic coverage of foreign intelligence.

The junta wanted him out so they could get at the impenetrable files with impunity. This happened under Pat Grey's adminsitration. And it was known all over the White House that Gray would last only six or eight months.

So feared was the junta by FBI men who have served most of their adult lives, but not enough yet to qualify for a pension, that they even didn't dare mark the old director's death last May 2.

Instead there was an "in-house" moment of silence in FBI offices across the nation on the first anniversary of Mr. Hoover's death. But not in public. Not even in the national headquarters here.

Until it was ceremoniously dumped, the junta simply ran the government with "this is the White House calling. The old man (Nixon) would like..." or "wants."

This operation reached into the national security circles. That's why Dr. Kissinger lunched with the international operative, William Leonard Taub, a Jimmy Hoffa agent who actually used his contact to meet Le Duc Tho.

Especially vulnerable were sections of the Labor Department. There I know of only one high official who stood up and told the junta to go to hell. And in soap opera language, the only words fitting, he paid a dear, dear price for his guts.

When Pete Brennan was named Secretary of Labor, the junta believed him a patsy. They sent the weirdest men along. Brennan rejected their offerings for high office in this all- powerful (second only to Justice) department--- including one candidate with underworld connections, to put it charitably.

Pete took seriously the President's directive that most departments would have "new majority" officials--- ethnic, racial, blue- collar and non-university representation. And Brennan, with the aid of the fatigueless Treasury Secretary George Shultz (whom the junta tried to get several times), won.

The junta did better in other departments until the whistle was blown. Its strategy was to place men in second and third echelons where the government really is run--- and with men who would report to the Haldeman- Ehrlichman elite corps. And during a lame duck administration at that, when the President, always a foreign service buff, was looking abroad.

This Orwellian 1984-darkness- at- noon junta is the story. The Watergate cover- up makes extraordinary copy. But what President didn't cover up? For example, did not Johnson dispatch two of Washington's most prestigious lawyers to make the rounds of newspapers to kill the story of a homosexual White House aide?

The junta's effort to isolate the President, fascistize the nation and run it, is quite a story in its own right.

River plays havoc with construction

CARUTHERSVILLE— The rampaging waters of the Mississippi River have washed away about one- third of the material on the 1.2- mile approach fill on the Missouri side of the Interstate 155 bridge being built south of Caruthersville, according to District 10 highway department officials.

"The water is still up and we haven't been able to tell where the sand used on the approach fill has gone," construction engineer Gary Chullino said of the I- 155 bridge project.

"If it all washed downstream, it means the contractor will likely have to get another dredge in and replace it," he added.

The contractor, R.B. Potashnick of Cape Girardeau, was caught with only the sand of the approach in place when the high water began. Had the project advanced further, there would have been an 18- inch dirt capping and erosions control sod mulch placed on the approach, Chullino said.

He explained the approach fill is on an average about 20 feet high. It is being constructed for two 24- foot wide concrete pavements.

Chullino said about 1,200 feet of the approach fill from where the bridge approach span is to be toward the Missouri side of the river was damaged. It is estimated approximately 300,000 cubic yards of sand washed away. The entire 1.2- mile approach fill consists of about one million cubic yards of sand.

Potashnick had begun some of the capping in January and during breaks in the flood, but little could be accomplished because of high water, Chullino observed.

Spur dikes had been constructed, but were not finished. Had the contractor been able to also get the dikes capped, the water probably would have been deflected somewhat and not washed away as much fill, Chullino noted. As it was, portions of the dikes also were washed out, he added.

"Without the rock and capping material (on the spur dikes) they were not sound. Soon the dikes were lost, which left the approach fill entirely exposed to currents," he said.

The duration of the flood also has caused hardships, he said. "The sand is continuously sliding off and falling into the water.

"We don't even know where the sand is," he declared. "About all Potashnick can do is bring a dredge back in and start repumping sand for the refill."

Potashnick's contract for constructing the approach fill is for $1,577,000, he said. The contract stipulates the contractor is responsible for actions of the elements.

"We're not sure yet how we'll go on this thing," Chullino stated. "The department may take the flood into consideration."

Chullino said it probably would be at least three more weeks before the river is down enough to inspect the amount of damage to the approach fill.

The flood is sure to cause a delay in completion of the bridge project, which was scheduled for 1976, he said. Bethlehem Steel Co., which has the contract for construction of the superstructural steel, has moved equipment to the site, but high water has prevented setting it up.

Piers for the main river span have been installed by Massman and Johnson Construction Companies, he said, but a contract has not been let for installation of 16 piers for the 1,000 foot approach span that will be in the gap between the main river span and the approach fill that was washed out.

Chullino said there was no damage to Tennessee's east side, because it did not get the velocity of currents that were experienced on the west side.

When completed, the overall, 7,098- foot structure will link Hayti with Dyersburg, Tenn. Contracts have not been let for construction of I- 155 in Missouri or Tennessee Chullino said if money is available they probably would be let this fall or early next year to allow two "working seasons" so that the highways would be finished when the bridge is ready for opening.

Mingo chances appear poor

PUXICO, Mo.— Chances of an 8,000- acre wilderness are in the last of the swamps that once covered Southeast Missouri appear all but gone unless conservationists can make their point before Congress.

The Department of the Interior, which proposes only 1,700 acres for wilderness protection in the old Mingo Swamp near here, sent its own plan to the White House which, a department spokesman said, probably will sent it to Congress as part of an overall wilderness package.

Conservation groups, including the Sierra Club and the Wilderness Society, urged at a hearing almost a year ago that the full 8,000 acres be considered. The Interior Department had called the hearing to consider only the 1,700 acres it proposed.

They said Monopoly Lake, the heart of the Mingo eco- system, is not included in the department's plan. The department, however, contends that the additional land proposed by conservationists does not meet wilderness specifications set by law.

Roger Lynn waives preliminary hearing

KENNETT— Roger Lynn, one of three persons involved in a Malden market burglary earlier this month, waived his right to a preliminary hearing Tuesday in Dunklin County Magistrate Court on burglary and stealing charges and was bound over to stand trial in Circuit Court.

The 18- year- old St. Louis resident has been accused of burglarizing B&J Market in Malden and stealing an assortment of cigarettes, some pocket knives, .22- caliber pistol and a ham.

Pros. Atty. Charles H. Baker has also charged Stanley D. Latham, formerly of Malden and now of Mississippi in connection with the incident. Although burglary and stealing and

A third man implicated in the incident, Wayne Tipton of Malden, is in custody for violating probationary terms. Baker said Lynn allegedly took the items to Tipton, who is his uncle, at Tipton's housetrailer, where the items were hidden by Tipton and Latham until they could be sold.

Former POW honored at family reunion

TULSA, Okla. — For seven and a half years, Col. James Robinson Risner was a Vietnam prisoner of war after being shot down Sept. 16, 1965. The weekend of May 5 Col. Risner was guest of honor at a family reunion attended by 135 relatives, some from as far away as California, but most were from Missouri not too far from where he was born in Mammoth Spring, Ark.

On May 5, a dinner was hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Warren Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Harry Warren Jr. and Mrs. Boyd Duff, all of Charleston, at Ramada Inn. Mrs. Warren Sr. is Risner's aunt and Harry Warren Jr. and Mrs. Duff are his cousins. This was the first family reunion in 12 years.

In his opening speech, Risner praised his wife Kathy, saying she and the wives who stayed home in doubt and with problems to solve are the ones due tribute.

"The men in the Hanoi Hilton and other prisons were typical Americans. They did no more than a cross section of men taken off the streets here," Col Risner said. "I don't feel that I am a celebrity. I was selected by a wheel of fortune to spend a few years in a communist prison. I don't think I did any more than any other military man," he said.

He told of the torture inflicted on the American prisoners, saying we were like animals and called criminals. "I never gave up. I never thought I would not get back," he said.

Risner gave credit to God and the Christian faith, saying, "I lived alone for about four years, separated from the others. I knew I had to pray to survive and for months I lived only one minute at a time.

"I thought God would let me be tortured to death before I talked, but he didn't. Tortured, I screamed all night. I wanted to talk, but they didn't want me to then," he said, indicating it was more demeaning to drag the torture out.

The Americans struggled with genius and energy to defeat the Vietnamese effort to keep POWs from communicating with each other, Risner said. Although anyone caught communicating with other prisoners was punished, he said they worked out codes that were transmitted by hand signals, eye and ear movement, foot patting, rhythm of bamboo brooms, the sound of shovels or water while washing clothes.

"God Bless You" was the most frequently passed message, he said.

"We (POWs) believed in God, our country and our flag. We believed in the right to dissent. I did not like it when the dissenters prolonged the war by giving heart to the enemy, but I believe in the right to dissent. I fought for that right and I'd do it again," Risner said.

Risner, his wife and their five sons live in Oklahoma City.

Taking a brisk walk in the morning is something we'll never be accused of stealing.

Ann Landers

Hospitalized people should leave 'junk' pills at home

Dear Ann Landers: I am 15 years old (a girl) and a steady reader of your column. My 17-year- old brother bugs me about it. He says something is wrong with a person who is interested in reading about other people's problems. When I told him I learned a lot from it he said, "That's not why you read it. The real reason is because you are a sadist."

He pointed out that in the last few weeks you have printed letters from a woman who asks if God is a Mormon and a Republican, three kids who are fighting about their father's money and he isn't even dead yet and a nut who says she can't get a job because the only people being hired today are blacks, Indians and homosexuals.

Please give me a good answer for my creepy brother.— Your Fan

Dear Fan; Next time your brother needles you about reading my column, ask him how come he knows everything that's in it?

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a registered nurse working in a large metropolitan hospital. I have noticed a serious problem in the realm of hospital care and decided to write to you in the hope that you would issue a warning.

The problem concerns the use of drugs by patients without the knowledge of the medical or nursing personnel.

Twice last week patients scheduled for surgery took "downers" on their own to calm themselves. Without realizing it, they set themselves up for an overdose, since most pre- operative medication includes a "downer" in injectable form. When that patient is wheeled into surgery he has a potentially lethal level of barbiturates in his blood stream.

I couldn't care less what these people do outside the hospital, but I implore all hospital- bound drug users to leave their junk at home. If a person who is dependent on drugs should find himself in the hospital for an emergency, he should confide the fact to a health professional and chances are good that the problem will be dealth with discreetly. The lives they save might be their own.— Concerned R.N.

Dear R.N.: Thanks for an important letter. I'd like to add a word. The same goes for booze. Alcohol is the Number One Drug in the United States and can be very dangerous when mixed with certain medication.

Dear Ann Landers: This is for "Constant Reader With Kid Problem." We, to,, moved out where space is plentiful. When we started to remodel there was a lot of lumber and equipment around the place. The vandalism and theft by the young boys in our neighborhood was terrible. Also, they used our yard as a short- cut between two very popular homes.

Doing my landscaping, topsoil and rock work had me snowed, so I decided to hire those same energetic boys to help. We served soft drinks and lemonade. The work progressed beautifully. Before long I noticed the kids took pride in our yard and their work. Now they are careful where they park their bikes. Big brothers remind younger ones not to step on our grass. Dogs are called off our lawn. They look after our mail, the newspaper and the yard when we travel. We encourage them to use our croquet set. We do jig- saw puzzles together and roast marshmallows. It's nice to have them for friends.— Peorian

Royals victim of beer sale

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"Show me" say Missourians and the Royals, who wear Kansas City across their chests, are being shown.

Tuesday night, California's Nolan Ryans showed the Royals no mercy as he threw a nohitter at them.

Wednesday night, the Texas Rangers put on a show which featured 10 cent beer, boisterous fan support and a freak single to show up Kansas City 2-1.

Elsewhere in the American League, Detroit edged Boston 65 in 10 innings, the Yankees drubbed Milwaukee 11-4, Minnesota trimmed Chicago 8-6 and California knocked off Oakland 7-2.

In the National League, the Mets outscored Montreal 8-3, Philadelphia beat Pittsburgh 52, St. Louis stopped Chicago 31, Atlanta outlasted Houston 5-2 in 11 innings, Los Angeles defeated Cincinnati 8-6, also in 11 innings and San Diego stopped San Francisco 4-1.

"I guess we ought to have 10 cent beer night every night," said Ranger Manager Whitey Herzog. "There sure was a lot of enthusiasm in that crowd.... It helped."

And the Royals' overenthusiasm on the basepaths didn't hurt the Rangers' cause any. In the sixth, Paul Schall was thrown out after he overran third base.

Wildlife gets help

The New Madrid County Sportsman's Club has placed more than 4,000 pounds of grain and feed for turkeys and other wildlife in the flooded woods land east of New Madrid. Howard Crisler, club president is shown as he places corn on a floating log. Some of the woods area has been covered by water from the Mississippi River for more than 60 days.

Standard all-star

Pretty Miss Debbie Matlock admires the jacket patch of Parma's Dale Crews, a member of the Daily Standard's 15- player all-star basketball team this past season. Jacket patches, noting the honor of the all-star, all-academic and number one team of the Daily Standard, has been provided each of the senior members of the teams by the newspaper.

Minor league stars lose

NOVATO, Calif.-- Both of Southeast Missouri's young minor league pitchers experienced defeat last week, according to the Daily Standard's exclusive player periscope report.

Greg Buys, former State high school shot put champion from Kennett, lost his second game in three outings this season for the West Haven Yanks in the Eastern double A division. The big righthander gave up one hit, two walks in his brief appearance to see his earned run mark baloon to 6.00. On the season he has worked six innings, allowing six hits and six walks while striking out seven.

Gideon's Mark Littell, who led the American Association in wins last week, experienced his first defeat of the season after recording three straight victories in the triple A division for the Omaha Royals.

Littell, who only two summers ago was firing strikes for Gideon high school against the Sikeston Bulldogs in the district championship game at VFW stadium, has worked 31 innings so far this season, allowing 29 hits, 13 walks while fanning 17. The fireballing righthander sports a respectable 2.32 ERA.

Vanduser loses first

KELSO— Kenny Russel outpitched Bill Gillian 1-0 in a SEMO softball game here Wednesday night. The loss was the first for Vanduser after three wins. Gillian holds all the wins and losses for the team.

Both Kelso and Vanduser were held to four hits in the game. Kelso scored the winning run in the first inning on a base hit and two errors. Vanduser threatened in the sixth inning with runners on second and third but failed to cross the plate.

Vanduser host New Hamburg Friday night in a SEMO encounter.

Ozark has suggestion

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Philadelphia Manager Danny Ozark has a cure for what's ailing the Pittsburgh Pirates—a good swift kick in the pants.

Ozark's Phils scored four times in the first inning, then rode the five-hit pitching of Wayne Twitchell to a 5-2 victory over the Pirates Wednesday night.

It was Pittsburgh's seventh loss in its last eight games, and lowered the Bucs' season record to 13-16.

"When you're in a slump like they are, you just have to kick yourself in the pants a little," Ozark said. "But they're still the National League East champions, and you can't consider them a dead ball club."

Elsewhere in the National League, St. Louis beat the Chicago Cubs 3-1 in an afternoon game while at night, Atlanta beat Houston 5-2 in 11 innings, the New York Mets defeated Montreal 8-3, Cincinnati outlasted Los Angeles 8-6 in 11 innings and San Diego beat San Francisco 4-1.

In the American League, it was: New York Yankees 11, Milwaukee 4; Detroit 6, Boston 5 in 10 innings; Texas 2, Kansas City 1; Minnesota 8, Chicago White Sox 6, and California 7, Oakland 2.

A throwing error charged to Pittsburgh right fielder Manny Sanguillen opened the gates for Philadelphia in the first inning.

The Phils loaded the bases on an error by Pirate second baseman Dave Cash, a single by Del Unser and a walk. All three runners scored when Greg Luzinski singled to right and Sanguillen's throw to the infield skipped all the way into the Phils' dugout.

"It was the infield's fault more than Sanguillen's," explained Pittsburgh Manager Bill Virdon, noting that Sanguillen made the right play in throwing to second base to hold Luzinski at first.

"There's always supposed to be someone on the bag, either the second baseman or the shortstop," Virdon said.

Twitchell kept the Bucs in check until the ninth, when reliever Mac Scarce came in to get the last two outs.

Mike Tyson's two-run triple was the big blow as the Cardinals halted the Cubs' sevengame winning streak, even though Chicago's Glenn Beckert had two singles to raise his consecutive-game hitting streak to 24.

Dusty Baker's sacrifice fly in the 11th inning drove in the first of three Atlanta runs which broke a 2-2 tie. Atlanta's Hank Aaron had earlier hit his 11th homer of the season, No. 684 lifetime, putting him exactly 30 back of Babe Ruth's magic mark of 714.

Unbeaten rookie Harry Parker won his fourth game of the season as the Mets shaded the Expos.

Dodger Joe Ferguson, having what he described as "my best night in the majors," collected four hits in five times at bat against the Reds, including a tie-breaking, two-run homer in the 11th inning.

San Diego's Mike Caldwell checked the Giants on just five hits and one unearned run. The Padres got 11 hits off San Francisco starter Juan Marichal, including a solo homer by John Grubb.

Chaffee opened the scoring in the bottom of the first inning as John Richbourg and David Little slapped doubles to score their lone run.

Charleston knotted the score in the top of the second and went ahead for good with two runs in the third.

The Bluejays added three insurance runs in the top of the seventh.

Steve Ritchey, David McDowell, and Junior Delay hit doubles for the Bluejays.

Ray Melton, superintendent, will give the welcome address and the invocation will be given by the valedictorian, with benediction being offered by the salutatorian.

If they'd recall enough autos, we'd have a lot more room for safety on the highways.

State collecting delinquent tax

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The state has collected $68,697 in delinquent motor vehicle and sales tax penalties in the last two months, says the associate director of the state Department of Revenue in charge of transportation.

Associate Director Russell Sloan said Wednesday his department began a routine check of files in fee offices throughout the state April 1.

He said the amount collected so far "represents just the tip of the iceberg."

Recently, Revenue Director James R. Spradling said as much as $100 million in sales taxes has not been collected in the past three years.

A federal grand jury has been reconvened in Kansas City to investigate the tax collections in that area.

The U.S. Justice Department has been investigating charges that revenue department employes have received gifts from businesses for specifying sales taxes less than the amount due.

Sloan said the revenue department employes in all state license offices have been ordered to check for the unpaid taxes.

Victims warned against 'disaster chasers'

ST. LOUIS — Victims of the recent flood disaster in Missouri are warned to watch for the migratory contractors, suppliers and salesmen who chase disasters for profit.

On the orders of President Richard Nixon, the Small Business Administration has warned victims of the storm that these fast- talking fly- by-night specialists are moving into Missouri.

The agency emphasized that SBA does not charge any fee for its services, that it never endorses any contractor, merchant, repairman, retailer, or supplier, and that all SBA employes working in disaster areas carry federal credentials, which disaster victims should ask to see when they are approached by a person posing as a representative of the agency.

The agency recommends that flood victims check out any contractors or salesmen before they sign a contract.

Francis X. Tobin, federal co-ordinating officer of the Office of Emergency Preparedness in St. Louis, issued a statement Tuesday, saying:

"In the past 24 hours reports have reached my office that there are individuals who are soliciting the business of disaster victims. They are offering to complete Small Business Administration loan applications in return for a $25 fee.

"I want to re-emphasize the statements that I made earlier concerning individuals who solicit money in order to perform work of this sort. These people are trying to make money out of the personal and financial problems of disaster victims.

"No federal or state employe will ask for any money to provide any of the assistance available to flood disaster victims."

For information concerning this problem or any other aspect of the disaster assistance program, phone toll free to 1-800-392-3740.

Boyd Corder, U. S. Small Business Administration Eastern Missouri disaster branch office manager, today reiterated that Southeast Missouri flood victims may apply for SBA long- term, low-interest disaster loans at Sikeston Activity Center, 201 S. Kingshighway.

The Office of Emergency Preparedness has closed many individual disaster assistance centers, but SBA presently has offices still open. Two mobile teams with SBA officers are still in operation in Eastern Missouri. SBA has established four satellite offices in the Maryland Heights disaster branch office to serve the needs of Eastern Missouri flood victims.

Hours at the Sikeston office are from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. seven days a week until further notice.

SBA loans may be made to repair or replace homes, personal property, businesses, farm residences, churches and charitable institutions.

The maximum that SBA can lend to repair or replace the above property is equal to the amount of damage occurred less any insurance or any other recovery.

SBA makes long- term loans in Missouri to the 81 counties and the City of St. Louis which have been declared disaster areas by President Nixon. The maximum SBA disaster home loan is $50,000. Personal property loans may not exceed $10,000. However, $55,000 is allowed for a combination of both home and personal property. Flood victims have until June 29 to file SBA loan applications.

Farmers are eligible for SBA disaster loans to repair or replace damaged dwellings and household contents.

SBA will cancel repayment of up too $5,000 of the principal of the disaster loan's total to each loan recipient with the understanding that the canceled amount will be used to restore or replace the applicant's real and personal property to its pre-disaster condition.

Following are suggestions offered for expediting loan applications:

SBA officials urge applicants to take photos of their damaged property prior to clean-up of same.

If the applicants personally bring their applications to the Sikeston office, their applications will be screened for completeness and if an application is accepted, it is then ready for loss varification and processing. It is desirable that SBA loan applications be returned in person.

Applicants should return applications with itemized lists of damaged personal property, as well as an estimate of repair and replacement of damaged property (Form 739). The SBA suggests that applicants make a list of damaged or destroyed items by going through the house, a room at a time, and making note of each article needing replacement or repairs.

Applicants should estimate the cost of replacing the items lost at pre-disaster prices.

SBA officers find one in 10 applications are not signed upon being returned.

In all loans of over $5,000, a deed is required. Applicants frequently overlook including proof of ownership on real estate, as well as last year's federal tax return which SBA uses to determine repayment ability.

SBA officers need applicant's temporary and permanent phone numbers.

Eligiblity of the data is also important.

SBA officials caution that the agency does not endorse any supplier or contractor.

SBA personel do no charge a fee for their services.

Applications may be obtained free of charge at the SBA offices.

There is no fee for loss application verification.

Anyone paying a fee for any of the mentioned services should contact the nearest branch of SBA.

Rural extension programs will not be affected by cuts

JEFFERSON CITY— Sen. Nelson B. Tinnin, Hornersville Democrat, said today that funding cuts suggested for the University of Missouri Extension Service are being cut from the service's urban programs.

Tinnin said rural extension programs will not be affected by the $2 million cut proposed by the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Tinnin said the urban legislators had asked for the cuts in city extension programs because they felt the programs were of little value.

The appropriations committee felt that, if the urban people did not want the extension program in their areas, the academic program should be expanded. The committees has never intended to cut rural extension services Tinnin said.

Tinnin stressed that the cut was a recommendation only, and had not become law.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor:

I think it should be brought to the public's attention that gov. money is being thrown away in Charleston.

I have been a Volunteer Red Cross Case worker at the Armory, where H.U.D., H.E.W., S.B.A., etc all have representatives. These are under the direction of Mr. Robert Hite from the office of Emergency Preparedness. Although Red Cross has been trying hard to stick to their guidelines, which state that a person must be suffering undue hardship DUE TO THE FLOOD, Mr. Hite who has no jurisdiction over Red Cross continues to interfere with their guidelines.

I was told it was none of my g-d- business how much money a person had in the bank, they were to be helped if they walked in there even if they were millionaires. I couldn't believe this and checked with the office of O.E.P. in St. Louis. I was told by them that anyone who came in was to receive help, regardless of who they were. After asking if that meant the butcher, the baker, the electrician etc., whose income was not affected by the flood, the answer I received was an emphatic "yes"

You'd better believe that every free- loader in the county is down there getting everything he wants.

One man was literally coerced into signing up for unemployment aid when he did not want it and told them so.

And we wonder why our government is on the verge of bankruptcy.

Sincerely,
Mrs. R. T. Yates

Dear Mr. Blanton —

On Mar. 22, '73 my mother's funeral and burial was conducted in Sikeston — I'm writing to express my most sincere appreciation to your fine police force for their support of the funeral procession from O'Guinn Funeral Home to the Sikeston Cemetery — it was especially a beautiful sight to observe one or more of them with hats removed, an expression not often customary in large city funeral processions. I am deeply grateful to your police force. Will you please find some way to express thanks from a grateful family —

The Lelia J. Hinson Family
Regards,
Harold C. Hinson

P.S. I left SeMo (Morehouse) in '41 as a young draftee but have never forgotten the wonderful people there — so warm and friendly —

Mr. Charles Blanton III
Sikeston Daily Standard
Sikeston, Missouri 63801

Dear Mr. Blanton:

The Poplar Bluff Gideons want to thank you for the use of your offices and telephones during our recent New Member Plan in Sikeston.

We contacted many of the ministers and later a large number of laymen. Having one central place from which to make the calls and coordinate our efforts was most helpful.

We appreciate your help to us very much. Thank you again.

Sincerely,
Ezra Cox, President
Poplar Bluff Gideons

April 23, 1973

Dear Sirs:

Please send me a copy of the "Sikeston Daily Standard." The one where it told of flying saucers recently on the front page.

Thank you,
Sincerely,
Frances Goldis

Enclosed is 25 cents. If too much, send two.

P.S. I have had a mental communication from outer space in 1957 which I checked and has proven truly from outerspace.

I and others watched a flying saucer in Santa Monica and Pacific Palisades, California several years ago. The others from Pacific Palisades were amazed at its maneuvers.

My type of mental communication was confirmed by a former Air Force serviceman in Trinity Baptist Church, Santa Monica, California — Reverend Warner Skiles. He was and may still be a High School principal in that area or nearby, Also, my brother, C. Frank Reeves, a former judge, probate, of Charleston and also a former high officer in the Navy told me that it was true that flying saucers were here. Also, the president of my UFO club of Van Nuys, California, Reverend Frank Stranges, was told by several U.S. representatives and senators that the people weren't told of Valiant Thor, a leader of a large group, 77, of visitors here from the planet, Venus because the government was afraid the people would panic as they did at the time Orson Welles had his Martian radio program.

I know an elderly lady who heard that program.

Dr. Stranges is going to send me a copy of the senators and representatives — that happened several years ago, that they spoke to him.

In my mental message — which happened one day in the winter of 1957 — while working at a clerk job with the General Telephone Co. of Santa Monica, Calif. — I was told they would be coming here from far off and I would be able to see them shining silver against the clouds.

They said they were going to give a judgement showing why people reacted like they did in situations using real people in real situations like in a play.

They said a joke would be played on someone — I had the impression that it would be like an April Fool joke.

They said there were college students in my group at church and I was going to a lot of socials there.

They told me what was going to happen to my romance there — and so far it has.

They said that the food I would find that I really needed like meat and avocadoes was the most expensive.

I got my B. S. degree from the University of Missouri in general Home Economics — in 1949.

On the end of the message I saw a vision. In it the fellow in the romance and I ran into each others arms in front of the church — Trinity Baptist of Santa Monica, Calif. and were making love as we and all the others there rose through the air — not in any aircraft.

After the message I called my minister, Rev. Fred M. Judson, and made an appointment to see him.

The longer I sat at my desk the sicker I got. I asked my supervisor, a Mr. Francis — someone, I don't remember his last name, let me go to see him.

I told the minister some of the message. The message repeated over and over in my brain for about 2 weeks at least — just pounding in.

I took off three weeks from work because of it.

That summer — one day after work — I was sitting on the edge of my bed in the dusk and found myself looking into the face of a young golden-haired man. He had short, wavy hair.

He didn't speak, and soon disappeared.

I decided he came to back the earlier message.

Also in the message I had been asked if I would go through hell for my brothers.

I had decided to stay in Santa Monica to see what it was all about — the message.

Two or more years later my son, Eric, was listening to his little transistor radio he had found on a deserted beach — fully operative — and came running to me from the bathroom. He said they are talking about flying saucers. He had me listen with him. He was about 7 or 8 years old at the time.

We listened and heard Dr. Frank Stranges talking. He said he had met in Washington, D.C. a man who claimed to be here from the planet, Venus. The man was named Valiant Thor — the leader. He said Valiant said he came here in 1957 — the year of my message. He landed in Alexandria, Virginia.

I think the newspaper there reported it, but I'm not sure.

He said 77 of them came here at that time in what they call a "starship".

In my romance, the fellow involved had been a professional football player in Canada. Our preacher, Dr. Judson, a good friend of his — they golfed together — said he was called the "golden- haired boy" and was famous there. — He said that one Sunday from the pulpit.

Well, I was upset from the message and romance happenings — the romance was complicated by a girlfriend of his and I wouldn't transfer my church membership from Charleston to Santa Monica.

I had started practice teaching Sunday School there with a lady, a Mrs. Pope Barton and had stopped because of the nervousness I felt from it all, etc.

One Sunday she came to me in the church service — the Mrs. Barton — and cried over me and asked me to join the church and she said she would go down with me. I decided to go down and join it. I did.

A week later, or so, the church gave a dinner for the new members and I went.

After the dinner groups of us were shown about the church. In the pastor's back study was, hanging on the wall, a picture of the fellow involved in the romance. He had his football uniform on — on it was the number 77.

Within a week, we heard the radio broadcast by Dr. Stranges on Flying Saucers, where he asked Valiant how many of them were here and Valiant said, 77.

77 is also the highway through Charleston that is also our main street, which passes in front of the First Baptist Church.

Also, as you probably know, when Jesus Christ was asked how many times to forgive someone — he said 70 x 7.

The broadcast was rather long.

I wrote Dr. Stranges and got a booklet about Valiant Thor, "My Friend from Beyond Earth".

In the booklet Dr. Stranges asked Val if the story of Jesus was true and Val said it was true. He said Jesus was preparing a place for his followers high above the clouds and was going to come back for them and take them there with him. "It won't be long now, keep the faith," said Val to Dr. Stranges.

Also somewhere Dr. Stranges asked Val why they came here and Val said that God sent them here because we were further away from Him than we ever had been and it was to get us back closer to Him, also it was to help bring the Kingdom of God in.

Dr. Stranges asked him where he came from and he said from the planet mentioned in our Bible called the morning and the evening star — the planet we call Venus.

He said they came here in 3½ hours from their planet to earth.

They also have smaller spacecraft they use between their "Starship" and earth. He said the "Starship" stays in our atmosphere as long as they are there.

There are pictures of Valiant and others here in the books.

He has written another book, "The Stranger at the Pentagon" — which I have read and have.

In the book Val tells how he met the president and vice-president — and stayed in a luxury apartment assigned to him by the government for 3½ years. He said he gave advice to officials when they asked for it. Also he said he sent 3 flying saucers by remote control to an Air Force Base in California at the time he first landed here, the government couldn't open them the last I heard and sent one to England, one to Canada and kept one.

Val said in the book that they did several tests on his space uniform.

They used an acetylene torch on it and it didn't even scorch it. They used acid on it— nothing happened to it. They used a diamond drill on it and the diamond broke off. They used a laser beam on it and it didn't phase it.

In the book Val tells of their mission here and the prayer that was said before they left Venus. They asked God's help in it — in contacting the right people on earth to help them.

At some other time — not in the book — he told Dr. Stranges that they had also sent messages to other people on earth.

They have gone back and forth at times to their planet since coming here.

Val said they would stay here as long as God wanted them to.

In the book Val says that he offered the government help with our diseases, ailments and toward a better way of life. He was refused — some said it would wreck our economy. The president and vice-president — they were Eisenhower and Nixon — wanted it made known to the world — his being here — but others including the head of the CIA didn't want it and they won out over Eisenhower and Nixon.

Later — not in the book — Val told Dr. Stranges we had the cures for cancer and other major diseases but they weren't given the people because so much money was made on the drives and they didn't want to give it up.

He also said they didn't belong to a fallen race like we do. Val said he had never broken one of God's laws. He said they live for years — I don't know how many.

In the book Val says his first visit to earth was when we were in the cave stage.

He heard President Lincoln praying on one visit during the Civil War.

He saw an atomic explosion over Japan on one visit and saw thousands of people die, which greatly saddened him.

In the book he said he didn't think earth people would panic from the government telling them of his being here. He said that after he watched the people watch him take off in his flying saucer.

He told Dr. Stranges he could speak every language on earth. He said they were what it says in the Bible when it says — you may be entertaining angels unawares. He said they could be your husband, minister, etc.

In the book he calls his spaceship Valiant — I think II.

My ex- husband is named Victor — he used to work as a sculptor at Hughes Aircraft. I think he is now — if he still is — a supervisor of building movie and TV sets in Culver City, Calif., etc.

In the message to me where they said they were going to give a judgment like a play — our minister, Dr. Fred Judson said he studied at college for several years to be an actor and was talked into becoming a minister. He is known for his wit, etc. He also travels abroad a lot and heads groups abroad.

His wife, Mildred, was a dietician — once upon a time — or at least studied to be one. I started going to Trinity Church because of her. She belonged to my club, the AAUW — the American Association of University Women. They had a meeting in the basement of Trinity and I went. I liked the church and decided to try it and did.

Dr. Judson said he was inspired by God to stay all these years at Trinity — I think over 30 years. That is rather unusual for a Baptist preacher.

I recently sent him a letter explaining the message further and all.

Dr. Stranges spent a night one summer in Val's flying saucer.

I am getting Val's recommendations for food and other things for good health — also his recommendation of what to take for aging. Also his farming methods and recommendations about fertilizers, pesticides and herbicides.

I now have quite a list made up.

Also Val told Dr. Stranges that Russia has several dead astronauts in orbit — I don't know if that is still the case.

He also said in the book that when the time was right — something like that , they would contact the other nations.

I asked Dr. Stranges to ask Val if they had contacted me in 1957. Val told him they had and I had also been tested for it.

When Val visited the president — in the book he gave him a letter from his High Council on his planet. At that time the president was given the power to interpret it. The president asked him how he could be sure he came from another planet and Val invited him to his space ship. He said he couldn't come and go as he pleased, he had to consult various people.

Val, at his first meeting with Dr. Stranges, told him he would make a movie about him — which is now trying to do.

Dr. Stranges came to visit me after I wrote him a long letter about my experiences. I joined his flying saucer club. He is also President of International Evangelism Crusades.

He makes speeches at various colleges and universities, etc.

He has also shown the book on Art Linkletter's TV show and Joe Pine's talk show in Los Angeles. Joe died a few years ago.

Dr. Stranges got interested in flying saucers because his roommate at college was a former Marine and had seen them in flight then.

That is all I can think of for now. Let me know what you think of it.

Sincerely,
Frances Reeves Goldis

When the Suspension Bridge spanning the Ohio River at Cincinnati was built in 1866, or thereabouts, it was a remarkable piece of engineering of ropes and cables. It was planned and builty by John Roebling, and at that time, the largest of its kind. Creative thinking being the forerunner of some engineering feats, Mr. Roebling later planned the famous Brooklyn bridge when he was injured and died just three weeks after starting on it, and his son finally finished his dream some 14 years later.

Creative thinking also solved the water problems by designing Refiners— completely automatic 4- in- 1 refining unit. The water refiner refines, polishes, filters and softens the water, furnishing you clean, clear, sparkling refreshing water from every tap in your home. It is economical to operate too- just pennies a day. Call. . .

Garment firm announces plans to locate in Hayti

HAYTI— Officials of Rice Coat and Suit Company of Kansas City have announced plans to locate a plant in Hayti.

A joint announcement was made Wednesday by Frank and Dale Rice, president and vice president of the company; Mayor L.R. Bain; Bill Welborn, industrial specialist of Bootheel Industrial Development Council; and Fred Chaffin, president of the Hayti Industrial Development Corporation.

The company will begin manufacturing ladies' coats in Hayti by June and should employ 45 persons within the first year of operation.

Welborn said Rice manufactures ladies' coats and suits under the trade name of Mar- Del, Passport and Weather Charmer, with accounts numbering approximately 1,000. What's the Law?

The case of the clock-eyed lawmakers

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

The regular session of a state legislature was fixed by law not to exceed 60 days. When the 60th day arrived, unfortunately, the weary legislators found themselves helplessly bogged down with a lot of work to complete. An imaginative group, however, they resolved their problem quite simply. They merely stopped the official clock from running in their legislative chamber and proceeded unperturbed to finish their chores.

It was thus that a certain criminal statute was enacted at 11:30 P.M. during the 60th day of the legislative session. In reality, however, the merry little lawmakers had enacted the statute well into the 61st day. Consequently, when Seena was arrested for violating that particular law, she insisted that it was as void as outer space.

"You can't stop time by stopping a clock," she argued in court. "Since the statute was passed after the legislative session had actually ended, the legislature had no authority to enact it and I can't be convicted of violating it."

"Of course she can," responded the district attorney. "Stopping the official clock is a common and reasonable practice in many state legislatures. If it wasn't permitted, lawmakers would get clock- eyed trying to complete their work within the prescribed time."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you uphold the validity of the clock- eyed statute and convict Seena of violating it?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that the state legislature had no right to extend its session by stopping the clock. Where the law fixes the duration of a regular legislative session, noted the judge, the legislature loses its powers at the end of that period. And, concluded the judge, if it's a 60- day session, any law passed on the 61st day is invalid and of no effect.

(Based upon a 1963 West Virginia Sup. Court of Appeals Decision)

The Prayer from The Upper Room

This one thing I do..., I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus. [Philippians 3:13- 14]

PRAYER: Divine Father, help me to envision the perfect goal for my life as a committed Christian. Empower me this day to "press toward the mark." In Jesus' name. Amen.

comes from fees and grants within the departments.

Appropriations chairman James "Jay" Russell, D-Florissant, objected to the change to allow the $6.4 million for the veterinary building.

Later he was successful in cutting $2.1 million from the university's budgeted repairs for two buildings at the Columbia campus.

Russell said the money for the veterinary school would hurt the state revenue reserve, which he estimated will be $38.5 million if the appropriations bills now being acted on are adopted with their present amounts.

Russell had not included the veterinary building money in the version he submitted to the committee. Russell also did not include $472,000 in capital improvement money for Missouri Southern College at Joplin and for Missouri Western College at St. Joseph.

Russell has asked for an attorney general's opinion on the two school's funding because he says state law requires they raise capital improvement money by local tax levies.

The Senate also passed and sent to the House bills to:

—Have police judges in all but first class counties be elected or appointed, and have compensation provided.

—Authorize salary increases for commissioners and employes of the St. Louis County election board.

—Establish guidelines for the management of investments of religious, educational and charitable institutions.

Have owners of rental vehicles and trailers pay taxes on each rental transaction, rather than a sales tas on the vehicles.

The House Appropriations Committee, in other action, held up its approval on a $750,000 emergency appropriations bill to help provide temporary housing for flood victims.

The committee will hear testimony from representatives of agencies involved Thursday to determine if the aid will be in time to help flood victims.
